THE DAY IN CONGRESS

The House Agrees to the Report on the Nicaragua Bill.

AN INTERESTING DISCUSSION.

A Michigan Man Declares That the Day for Isolation Has Passed

PROCEEDINGS IN THE SENATE

Matters of Especial Interest to Oregon and Washington—The Sub Treasury Defalcation—The Sinking Funds

WASHINGTON, Feb 6 In the house the consideration of the conference report on the Nicaragua canal bill was resumed, it being agreed that the debate should be closed at 1 o'clock

Nelson, Minnesota opposed the conference report

Chipman, Michigan said that he favored the bill as it came from the senate He had not favored it as it passed the house, the amendments which have been placed on it having served to emasculate it They had been incorporated on the idea that the United States should be free from entangling alliances and that it should isolate itself He said

The day for isolation has passed voices from all parts of the world are warning the United States of this voices from the Isthmus from Canada, from Samoa from wherever foreign nations have planted their flags. The attempt to make it impracticable for American enterprise to place it in foreign countries is too late We are carrying our flag into the region of Central America, we are carrying it with the endorsement of this government We have put ourselves where though we may not be primarily liable we should be morally responsible for the safety and protection of the great American enterprises which will help to spread our power over the world. I, for one hope that this step is only the prelude to the day when the nation will follow and we as a people will plant our feet on these regions, and when our flag shall wave over the state of Nicaragua as over the United States of America [Applause]

Dingley of Maine favored the report

O'Neill of Missouri said that he was in receipt of many telegrams from prominent men in St Louis in favor of the bill He had not an extreme sensitiveness concerning the bond holders The trouble with the American people was a lack of self assertion They were continually quibbling and afraid to do this or that on account of consequences The greatest nation on earth should be the first to lead giant enterprises and conservative moss back statesmen need not be alarmed

Scott of Pennsylvania said that the gentleman from Alabama (Cobb) had supplemented his constitutional argument by an expression of the interest he took in the lambs of Europe and for fear congress might do something by which those lambs would be inveigled into investment and lose their money If the lambs of Europe, as represented by the Rothschilds, Barings, and other great banking houses were not able to take care of themselves and look out for their own investments he did not think congress could help them

THE [illegible]

[illegible] support of the conference report and it was agreed to [illegible]

Dingley of Maine from the committee on merchant marine and fisheries reported a resolution calling upon the secretary of the treasury for information as to what orders were given to the commander of the United States revenue cutter Rush in regard to the protection of the seal fisheries in Behring sea in the spring and summer of 1888 and whether such instructions differed from those given the same commander in the spring and summer of 188[illegible] and if so what reasons existed for any material change in such instruction adopted

The house then took a recess, the evening session to be for the consideration of the bills reported from the committee on Indian affairs

EVENING SESSION

WASHINGTON Feb 6 At the house evening session Peel of Arkansas called up the house bill to divide a portion of the reservation of the Sioux Indians in Dakota into separate reservations and secure the relinquishment of the Indian title to the remainder

The amendments exempting honorably discharged Union soldiers and sailors from the payment of the sums required to be paid by settlers upon lands surrendered by the Indians and to relieve all settlers from payment upon their entries were held to be pending with the understanding that the vote be taken upon them to morrow

After a few other unimportant changes had been made the previous question was ordered and the bill was laid aside until to morrow Adjourned

SENATE PROCEEDINGS.

An Attack on the Civil Service Reform Movement.

WASHINGTON Feb 6 The senate bill granting the Big Horn Southern railway the right of way across the Fort Custer military reservation in Montana was passed

The resolution heretofore offered by Chandler, instructing the appropriation committee to investigate the naval officials claims was taken up After a long debate the resolution went over without action and the executive and judicial appropriation bill was taken up

The pending question was the amendment to increase the clerical force of the civil service commission

A long and uninteresting discussion which turned principally upon the dereliction of the postoffice department, was carried on by Cockrell Teller Vest and Stewart

Then Daniel attacked the civil service system itself as being un American unrepublican and undemocratic While he regretted the defeat of the democratic administration he felt that there would be some consolation in it if the coming administration should manifest no affection for the modern machine system of appointment He hoped it would lead the government back to the old principle in which the people were recognized as having the right to share in the people's offices If the republican party would go about it sincerely and help to rid the country of that humbug he would pledge at least one democratic vote to assist them in doing it He longed to see the time when the plain American citizen might feel that there was no bar to any office under the government of which he was worthy and he hoped the new administration and its advisors would find some way of amending the system, so as to throw open the doors to all applicants, although they might be subjected, when necessary to proper examination. Adjourned

NORTHWESTERN INTERESTS.

Legislation in Favor of Increased Compensation for Public Surveys

WASHINGTON Feb 6—Representative Hermann, who is a member of the public lands committee in speaking of the great demand in the Pacific states and territories for an increased government appropriation for public surveys and especially for increased rates to surveyors for the surveys of mountain and brush covered lands says that a liberal allowance will be made for Pacific surveys He also says that in the sundry civil bill, just passed by the house the gross appropriation has been doubled over last year, and that the commissioner of the general land office may allow for the survey of lands heavily timbered, mountainous, or covered with a dense undergrowth, rates not to exceed $13 per lineal mile for standard and meander lines $11 for township and $7 for section lines or if in cases of exceptional difficulty in the survey the work cannot be contracted at these rates compensation for the surveys and resurveys may be made by said commissioner with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior at rates not exceeding $18 per lineal mile for standard and meander lines $15 for township and $12 for section lines Of the sum appropriated not exceeding $20,000 may be expended for the examination of public surveys in the several survey districts in order to test the accuracy of the work in the field and to prevent payment for fraudulent and imperfect surveys returned by deputy surveyors and for the examination of surveys heretofore made and reported to be defective or fraudulent

Secretary Vilas to day modified the decision of the commissioner of the general land office in the rejection of the meanders of the three streams in Washington territory known as East Twin river West Twin river and Deep Creek in fractional township 31, range 10 of the Olympia land district as shown by the survey of that township by deputy surveyor Gilbert M Ward and in disallowing Ward's account for surveying amounting to $268 The secretary directs a hearing to determine the meanders of these streams and that the land commissioner shall readjudicate in the case

THE SUB TREASURY DEFALCATION

Representative Felton Insists That Bornemann is Innocent

WASHINGTON Feb 6—In regard to the $10,000 defalcation in the sub-treasury at San Francisco for which Bornemann is now on trial Representative Felton of California says that Detective Metzler's theory is untenable

Metzler's theory is that while Felton was sub treasurer in 1885 Bornemann paid two forged checks amounting to nearly $10,000 The department notified Felton that he would have to reimburse this amount at once Felton delayed and received another notification Metzler's theory is that Bornemann was asked by Felton to make this good and that instead of doing so he left the deficit standing, pretending to have paid it when, in reality he had not and that when the money was counted at the subsequent transfer the deficit was either made good temporarily or [illegible] concealed

Detective Metzler's theory said Felton is wholly [illegible] It is true that Bornemann paid [illegible] forged checks He was at lunch, and they were paid by [illegible] the bookkeeper Bornemann therefore was not responsible for the loss in the [illegible] degree [illegible] authorized [illegible] to act as cashier while Bornemann was at lunch and while thus acting he paid two forged checks

I assumed the entire responsibility of the loss I delayed making it good hoping to get the bill through congress relieving me from the payment but no bill was passed for me and I made the loss good myself I desire to say that in all my relations with Bornemann he proved thoroughly honest, reliable and efficient

THE SINKING FUND.

Report of the Secretary of the Treasury on the Union and Central Pacific

WASHINGTON Feb 6 The senate several days ago adopted the resolution offered by Mitchell calling on the secretary of the treasury for information as to the amounts in the sinking fund to the credit of the Union Pacific and Central Pacific railroad companies February 1 1889 under the operation of the Thurman sinking fund act which calls for a statement of the amount of funds invested in bonds the face value of the bonds purchased their present market value and the difference between the amount of the sinking fund had it been uninvested and the amount due to the investment In response the secretary to day laid the same before the senate It makes the following statement Union Pacific money for government transportation withheld under the act of May 7 1878 $6,761,869 cash payments by the company $1,421,714 making the total paid into the sinking fund $7,773,583 This money was invested in United States and Pacific railroad first mortgage bonds of a total face value of $7,249,480 The market value of the bonds February 1 1889 was $9,030,440 showing the increase by reason of investments to have been, $1,256,[illegible]

From the Central Pacific $[illegible] was received and invested in bonds of a face value of $3,111,853 with a market value February 1 1889 of $3,[illegible] making the increase by reason of the investment $[illegible]114

HULLS AND BOILERS.

Annual Session of the Board of Supervising Inspectors

WASHINGTON, Feb 6 The board of supervising inspectors of steam vessels concluded its annual session to-day It refused to change the form of the sample test of steel The board, however to partly meet the wants of manufacturers changed their requirements in regard to steel plates to the extent of reducing from 45 to 40 per cent the reduction of area of steel plates three fourths inches and upward in thickness The board also adopted a rule requiring test pieces from each and every plate of iron or steel used in shells or other parts of boilers, subject to tensile strain Important changes were also made in regard to spanning the distance between the stays of boilers on flat surfaces

The board refused to adopt the proposition to have tests of the material made at the works of the manufacturers where such plates were to be used in boilers outside of the local inspection districts in which the plate manufacturers are located The rule was adopted requiring that the actual thickness of the plates in boilers ten years old and upwards shall be ascertained by actual measurements at each annual inspection and allowing only steam pressure for such ascertained thickness of plate, providing the boilers are otherwise in good condition The paragraph in section 4, rule 1 requiring the inspectors to send the certificate of the boiler plate to the supervising inspector was repealed A resolution was adopted advising towing steamers on Western rivers to carry two white lights, one above the other three feet apart and fifteen feet above the hurricane deck when towing

Reception to Governor Hill.

THE VETO MESSAGE.

Why Gov. Pennoyer Opposes the Bull Run Bill.

THE MEASURE COMES UP TO-DAY

Important Changes in the Pilotage Bill in the Interest of Astoria.

WORK ON THE CONSOLIDATION BILL

Layman's High License Measure in the Hands of the Senate Committee on Education Another Road Bill

SALEM Feb 6—Governor Pennoyer's veto of senator Carson's bill to authorize the Portland water committee to introduce Bull Run water and issue bonds to the amount of $1,500,000 to pay for the same, was read in the senate at 11 o'clock this morning The bill and veto were made the special order of business for 2 P M to morrow

At 10 45 doorkeeper McCully was handed a bulky envelope and holding it aloft to catch the eye of the chair, he said "Mr President, a message from the governor"

"Ten to one it is the veto of the Portland water bill" said a senator as a page delivered the package to President Simon

The veto was withheld a few moments until current business was disposed of At 11 o'clock, President Simon announced a message from his excellency, the governor and handing it to the clerk instructed him to read it Here is the full text of the veto

To the Honorable the Senate of the State of Oregon I herewith return senate bill No 17 with my dissent. This is a bill amendatory of an act approved November [illegible], 1886 which act provided for the issuance by the water commissioners of the city of Portland of a certain amount of bonds for the purpose of providing water works for the city, and which act further provided that "all bonds issued and disposed of under this act shall be exempt from taxation either by the state or any county or municipal corporation therein" Senate bill No 17 provides for the issuance by the water committee of $1,500,000 more of bonds "which bonds shall in all particulars, except as in this act otherwise specially provided, conform to and have the same force and effect as those authorized by said act of 1886, and shall be entitled to the same privilege and exemption. This bill therefore provides that the water committee of the city of Portland may issue $1,500,000 of water bonds which bonds shall be exempt from taxation by the state or any county or municipal corporation therein

Section 1 Article 9 of the constitution of the state of Oregon provides as follows "The legislative assembly shall provide by law for uniform and equal rate of assessment and taxation and shall prescribe such regulations as shall secure a just valuation for taxation of all property both real and personal excepting such only for municipal, educational, literary scientific religious and charitable purposes as may be specially exempted by law" Under the provision of this section of our state constitution the legislative assembly can exempt municipal property from taxation, but there is no provision by which it can both exempt such property and the money or bonds with which it has been purchased That instrument provides for the exemption of municipal property from being taxed but it does not anywhere provide that twice the amount of that property shall be exempted. These bonds after they have been paid out by the [illegible] municipal property [illegible] private hands and become private property and the legislature [illegible] from taxation [illegible] they are private property and they can be exempt from taxation no more than any and all other private property

The section of the constitution before referred to provides for uniform and equal rate of assessment and taxation How can there be an equal rate of taxation when one person has $10,000 in water bonds at par no tax and his neighbor $10,000 in real estate that is subject to full taxation state county and municipal? The fact that these bonds after they have passed into the hands of private parties are in no sense of the word municipal property but that they are private property, is so plain and self evident as to need no argumentation whatever And the further fact that, being private property they cannot be exempt from taxation is as equally clear and conclusive.

The constitution of Oregon as above quoted enjoins upon the legislative assembly that it shall prescribe such regulations as shall secure a just valuation for taxation of all property both real and personal excepting such only for municipal educational literary scientific religious and charitable purposes as may be specially exempted by law And yet it is now proposed by the legislative assembly in defiance of the above provision [illegible] valuation for taxation of the [illegible] property [illegible] shall be made [illegible] that such property shall be exempt even when it has [illegible] into private hands and been [illegible] The [illegible] shall provide [illegible] silver dollars paid out by the water committee for [illegible] property [illegible] which have passed [illegible] shall be exempt from taxation [illegible] the amount of bonds [illegible] paid out after having passed into private hands [illegible] become private property [illegible] exempt from taxation The proposition is as reasonable [illegible] and both are unconstitutional

Some years ago the city of Portland was the possessor of a lot and building on Morrison street which was used by the fire department. Subsequently the lot was sold at public outcry by the city and was purchased by a private citizen and became private property While it was the property of the city it was exempted by law from taxation because it was municipal property and used for municipal purposes Did the right of exemption from taxation adhere to that lot, after it had ceased to be used for municipal purposes and become private property? No one will assert it And in the case of these water bonds [illegible] this right of exemption from taxation [illegible] after they [illegible] ceased to be municipal property [illegible] become private property any more than it would in the case of the real property above mentioned? No one can assert it.

If this bill should become a law and this issue of $1,500,000 of water bonds should be made and if such bond shall be judiciously expended by the committee the city of Portland will have a pipe line from Bull Run to that city of the value of $1,500,000 This, by law, will be exempted from taxation By the operation of this bill, however, $1,500,000 more in the shape of these water bonds, which will have passed into the hands of private parties will also be exempted from taxation It must be again repeated that while our constitution exempts municipal property from taxation it does not provide for the exemption of twice the amount of such property

It is and should be the aim of every free and just government to accord to its people equal [illegible] special privileges to [illegible] Our constitution declares that all taxation shall be equal and uniform [illegible] all property, both real and personal [illegible] and yet the complaint is borne to us from every quarter of the state that under our present system of assessment certain classes of the community are securing for themselves in defiance of law an unjust immunity from their share of the public burdens. And will this legislature [illegible] instead of affording relief and protection against this great injustice still further aggravate that crying abuse by creating, in defiance of the fundamental law of the land by positive statutory enactment, a species of property which in private ownership, will be granted the unique privileges over any other species of private property, of total exemption from taxation? Shall the cry of the people of this state for justice in this regard be answered alone by the infliction of a still greater injustice? No private property under our state constitution can be exempted from taxation, and this bill which proposes such exemption is plainly unconstitutional [illegible] veto the bill

SYLVESTER PENNOYER, Governor

When the reading of the message was finished President Simon said that the question now was "Shall the bill pass notwithstanding the veto"

On motion of Tongue the bill and veto were ordered printed

Carson moved to make the bill the special order of business for 2 o'clock to morrow afternoon

A question then arose as to whether State Printer Baker would be able to have the matter printed in time.

Mr. Baker said he would be able to do so if permitted to suspend work on two long and important bills

The senate on motion of Carson vested him with the necessary power

A majority of the house committee on commerce has succeeded in framing a report upon Northup's pilotage bill and will ask unanimous consent to morrow morning to report the same back to the house with the following amendments Adding to section one the words "and two of said commissioners must be actual residents of Astoria Clatsop county Oregon" adding to line six of section two after the word "grounds" the words "and limit the number of pilots and pilot boats allowed thereon" inserting in section 2 after the word "provided" in line 5 the words "and the number is not complete" Section 4 is amended by striking out the words "[illegible]" in the last line and adding the following "Of such character and condition as the board has prescribed for that service No bar pilot license shall be issued to the owner or owners of any steam tug boat or to any person or persons in the employ of any such tug boat or the owners thereof and it shall be unlawful for any bar pilot to be employed or interested in any such tug boat in the capacity of a bar pilot; and any bar pilot violating this provision shall forfeit his license In section 5, line 3, striking out the words "six months" and substituting "one year" In section 6, line 2 after the words "section 3912" inserting the following "The board shall license such number of pilots for the bar and river pilot grounds respectively as it may consider best for the pilot service and the interest of commerce" In section 7, making lines 5 and 6 read "Five dollars per foot draft of such vessel and 3 cents a ton for each ton over 500 tons" In section 8 making lines 4 and 5 read "And 3 cents for each ton over and above 500 tons" In section 12 striking out "3923"

The above amendments are recommended by Chairman Thompson Parker and Short. The other two members of the committee are not exactly pleased with this yielding to the demand of the bar pilots and a minority report will be presented in favor of the passage of the original bill

The Multnomah representative delegation held another conference on the consolidation bill this evening but did not accomplish much as there were not over five members present at any time, and they did not care to make changes in the bill in the absence of their co laborers The only ones who were in constant attendance were Strowbridge Hume and Fisher Mr Northup had an engagement and had to retire early. Mr Earhart was present for a short time and Mr Thompson came in late. Messrs Ladd Gilbert and Harrington were not present at all Among those in attendance besides the delegation were City Attorney Adams, Fire Commissioner George L Story Councilman Hoyt E J Jeffery, John Burke Samuel Wolfe J P O Lownsdale, and F L Willis of Portland and Thomas Hislop and H P McGuire, of East Portland. The session lasted two hours during which time twenty six pages of the bill were read, bringing the committee down to chapter XI which pertains to the collection of delinquent taxes Eighteen pages remain to be read They will be finished at to morrow night's meeting and the bill will be reported in the house Friday

The bill was read by sections and when anyone had a motion to offer or a suggestion to make a stop was made Hume moved to make the mayor of the city ex officio member of the fire police and water commissioners Fire Commissioner Story said this plan was impracticable so far as the commission of which he is a member is concerned, and so it was not acted on

The salary of police judge was fixed at the definite sum of $2400 a year and the power of fixing his compensation was taken from the council

There was talk of striking that part of section 57 which requires the city superintendent of streets to possess the qualifications of a civil engineer but nothing was done

Hume moved to take the power of fixing the salary of the chief of police captains and officers from the police commission and fix the salaries at definite amounts, the same as they are now paid No action was taken

Section 96 was amended so that it will require one third instead of one-half of the interested property owners to petition for and obtain a street improvement and section 97 was amended to require two thirds instead of one half of the owners to remonstrate against an improvement

Section 10[illegible] was amended so that an error in the entry of an assessment in the docket of city liens shall not vitiate the lien

The council was invested with authority to improve unsafe or dangerous streets, without requiring a petition of the interested property owners It was also suggested to amend the section of the bill referring to the water supply by furnishing water to the city and school district free of charge

Just before adjournment Fire Commissioner Story explained the position of the commission and what it would require He thought it best to amend section 177 by striking out the words "if it shall be deemed practical" which give the council discretionary power to levy a tax for the maintenance of the fire department in accordance with the estimates of the commission He said the commission and council had so far got along without any trouble, but a time might come when the two bodies would be at variance, and the council might cut down the commission's estimate to a dangerous degree If three cities are consolidated said Mr Story we shall have to expend $[illegible] to establish a fire alarm telegraph on the east side of the river and connect Albina and East Portland with the Portland system and $2000 for a new truck We calculate that two fire engines and a hook and ladder company will be sufficient for the needs of the East side and in case of emergency we can send two engines from Portland To maintain the department in the East Side it will cost $12,000 a year for the two engine companies, and $5000 for the truck company, which will answer calls in East Portland and Albina. Whether the cities are united or not, we shall need a fire boat, which will cost $10,000

Commissioner Story's suggestions will be acted on to morrow night

Representative Layman's high license bill, which makes the license for malt liquors $200 and for spirituous liquors $400 a year, was the cause of a long discussion in the senate this morning It was read twice by title and referred to the committee on education The motion to refer to this committee was made by Carson

[illegible] said reference was unnecessary as the bill had passed the usual course in the house and had been considered in the committee of the whole and thoroughly digested, and he believed it should be allowed to remain on the calendar and take its course.

Cogswell and Chandler favored the reference of the bill, which they said they did not oppose. They saw objectionable features which they thought should be remedied.

Watts said the bill had been printed and under fire in the house for three weeks, and with the session half over reference for amendments meant further delay, and further, that no license law would be passed this session. "I believe the people of the state demand this law," he said. They expect it from one part of the state to the other. I believe that the mind of every senator is made up as to how he will vote. Let us kill the bill or pass it."

Tongue said he would move to amend section 11, which reads: "Nothing in this act shall be so construed as to apply in any manner to incorporated towns and cities of this state," by adding the words "incorporated before the passage of this act." Tongue said this amendment was necessary if it was desired to make the law applicable to towns incorporated after the passage of the act, or else future legislatures will have to repeat the action of the present one and insert a clause providing that no license shall be issued for a sum less than that fixed by the state law.

Chandler inferred from what Watts said that the motion for reference was intended to obstruct the passage of the bill. He thought therefore that Senator Watts should accord to his brother senators the integrity and honesty of purpose he claimed for himself. He (Chandler) was strongly opposed to sections 4 and 5 compelling persons wanting licenses to obtain at his own trouble and expense, the signatures of a majority of the voters in his precinct, and to publish the petition in a newspaper for four consecutive weeks.

Senator Carson denied that the purpose of his motion was to defeat the bill.

Cogswell said that the license required by the bill is entirely too high, and that he would move to cut it down, because the present figures practically enforced prohibition in the small towns. He denied that opposition to the bill was captious, and charged that Watts had no right to claim unfair play on the part of any senator.

Watts explained that he did not aim to make charges against any senator, and that if he was so understood his remarks must have been misconstrued. He said he intended to say that reference to a committee would delay action.

Chandler wanted to take the power of enforcing the law from the hands of the grand jury and invest it in justices of the peace and municipal authorities.

Dimick said he was opposed to switching off the bill and delaying it.

Carson's motion was then voted on and carried 16 to 13. Here is the vote:

A motion was then made to empower the committee to report on the bill at any time, but was lost, failing to secure a two-thirds vote, the vote standing 18 to 11; absent, 1.

The senate had an extended discussion on another road bill this morning. It was Senator Gray's bill to appropriate $15,000 to construct a road from Olney, Clatsop county, via Mist and Veronia, Columbia county, to Greenville, Washington county. After a long exchange of views on the constitutionality and unconstitutionality of the measure, the bill was passed 21 to 7.

Gray and Moore made excellent speeches in favor of the passage of the bill, urging that the road was needed, as it would connect the people of a portion of Clatsop county with the Willamette valley, so that they could get supplies when the Columbia river was closed to navigation.

Veatch fought the bill, as he has fought all others of the same kind. He said all such bills are unconstitutional, and he owed it to his conscience and to his constituents to vote against them. He thought the stopping point had been reached, and he thought it was time to stop. He said that it was said by people all over the state that the members of the legislature were standing in with each other and passing these road bills regardless of all opposition.

Barin spoke for the bill; also Tongue.

Watts read from the constitution, and urged that the bill was unconstitutional.

The bill was then passed by the following vote:

ABSENT.

Chamberlain, Wager—2.

At a meeting of the Salem Board of Trade held last evening a set of resolutions were adopted regarding legislation upon railroad matters, and copies of these have been delivered to-day to the delegation from Marion county. The resolutions and the accompanying preamble, which were adopted almost unanimously, read as follows:

WHEREAS, The wish of every shipper in this state is for cheap transportation rates both in shipping the products of this country to the great markets of the world as well as shipping the necessaries of life to us from the great supply depots; and

WHEREAS, The Salem Board of Trade recognizes that in close competition of transportation companies, only, will the rates of transportation be brought to their proper basis; and

WHEREAS, The era of railroad construction in this state is only beginning, and that only a small portion of our state is traversed to-day with these great marketing highways; and,

WHEREAS, Oregon is now in need of far better facilities for the transportation of the fruits of the soil and factories to the great markets of the world; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Salem Board of Trade, that this body views with alarm the efforts of certain members of the legislative assembly to pass such stringent legislation as will be likely to hamper and delay the introduction of greater capital into this state for railroad construction, and to virtually cause the discontinuance of work on all lines now projected and in course of construction; and, be it

Resolved, Further, that the Marion county delegation be requested to use their most stringent efforts to retard and prevent the passage of such "anti-railroad" legislation as will have such a serious effect on the welfare and future prosperity of our rapidly developing and growing state.

This afternoon the senate passed three bills whose purport can be ascertained by reference to the detailed report. More business would have been done but for a wrangle over Watts's bill for the relief of Joel J. Hembree, and Sinclair's bill to promote drainage. The most important bill passed was Looney's, repealing the state law against vagrancy. When the bill was under fire, Dimick stated that since the law went into effect, Marion county had been put to the enormous expense of $400 a month to enforce it, and he added that he had a letter from County Judge Catlin, declaring that the vagrancy law was a burden on taxpayers.

Cogswell's joint resolution submitting an amendment to the constitution to a vote of the people was adopted by the senate this afternoon. It takes the voting power from foreigners, whom the present constitution allows to vote one year after they have declared their intentions of becoming citizens. Inasmuch as the amendment, if accepted by the people, will not take effect until 1893, one year men will have plenty of time to become full citizens.

Watts's bill to appropriate $478 for the relief of Joel J. Hembree, caused a great deal of discussion in the senate this afternoon. Watts first asked for $821, but the committee on claims, to whom the bill was referred, cut the amount to $478. The claim was for Oregon territorial warrants, some of them issued forty-two years ago, amounting all told to about $250, interest which has accumulated, augmenting the original debt nearly five fold. The warrants were bought by A. J. Hembree, who was killed in the Yakima Indian war in 1856, and were lost sight of for many years, coming to the surface when the widow of the Indian fighter died. Joel J. Hembree is a son of the deceased, and administrator of the estate. The senate did not seem to like the idea of paying the money to Joel direct, and referred the bill to the claims committee, with instructions to amend so it shall be held for the benefit of the heirs, of which there are four.

Tongue said if the bill were passed, there should be no discrimination against state papers, and it should reach papers sent into Oregon from other states.

CABINET PROGNOSTICATION.

Blaine, Windom, Rusk and Wanamaker Head the List at Present.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 6.—Among cabinet speculations, Blaine, Windom, Rusk and Wanamaker stand at the head of the list to-night, and there are those who believe that each name is a fixed star. Close following these four favorites are the names of Evarts, Warner Miller, Charles Foster and Judge Estee.

This afternoon 200 coal operatives and miners, now holding a convention here, visited the president-elect in a body. There was no speechmaking on either side.

Among out of town visitors of prominence Edmond Morton Smithy, of Denver, came to present the president-elect with a memorial, signed by Governor Cooper, of Colorado, the lieutenant governor, secretary of state and all the other state officials, strongly endorsing Hon. John M. Thurston, of Omaha, for secretary of the interior. He also brought a petition, signed by nearly every member of the state senate and house (democrats as well as republicans) to the same effect.

Resolved, By the senate and house of representatives of the seventh general assembly of the state of Colorado, that Hon. Benjamin Harrison, president-elect, be, and is hereby requested and urged to appoint Hon. John L. Routt, of Colorado, to a cabinet position.

KANSAS WANTS A CABINET MEMBER.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 6.—The house of representatives has adopted a resolution calling the attention of President Harrison to the fact that Kansas was the banner republican state of the Union, having given 82,000 republican plurality, and that it also had a larger ratio of volunteer soldiers than any other state in the Union and declaring that this entitles the state to suggest the name of one member of his cabinet, and that Senator Preston B. Plumb is the choice of Kansas for that position.

GOING TO INDIANAPOLIS.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 6.—A delegation left Topeka, Kas., to-day for Indianapolis, to present to President-elect Harrison the resolutions adopted by the legislature, urging Senator Plumb's name for the cabinet.

MYSTERIOUS TRAGEDY.

Astoria Shocked by a Terrible and Bloody Struggle.

THE MAN IN THE CASE IS DEAD.

But the Woman Lives, With Angry Wounds in Her Head—A Coroner's Inquest To-Day May Disclose the Motive.

ASTORIA, Or., Feb. 6.—A dreadful tragedy took place in the second story of the Welch block, on the north side of Water street, this morning. Neil Livingstone, aged 54 years, has been employed in the reading room of the Columbia River Fishermen's Protective Union, and was a native of Glasgow, Scotland. One of his most intimate friends was a young man named James Ingleton, now employed as fireman on the tug Astoria. A few months ago a young lady to whom Mr. Ingleton had been engaged came out from Barbadoes, and they were married. Livingstone was a frequent visitor at their rooms, and was often engaged in helping around the house.

He was an eccentric man in his liking for Ingleton, and would go over to his place to assist in any way he could. Yesterday morning he was at their rooms over Foard & Stoke's store, and was engaged in nailing a piece of muslin across the transom over the door of the sitting room, the door being locked on the inside, when the muffled sound of a pistol shot was heard. Livingstone came out of the room, ran diagonally across the passage way, bursting into the rooms occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Osbecken, and flung himself on the bed, blood pouring from his mouth. Mrs. Osbecken, startled beyond measure by the bloody apparition, pulled the man off the bed. He dropped on the floor, and died in a pool of blood by the bedside.

Mrs. Ingleton was met by some bystanders coming down stairs, a hatchet in her hand, and blood streaming from a ghastly wound in her head. She was taken to Dr. Fulton's office, where it was ascertained that her wounds were not dangerous. Her skull is fractured on the right forehead, and there are two other wounds in the head, apparently caused by the corner of the hatchet. She was removed to St. Mary's hospital.

The body of Livingston was removed to Coroner Surprenant's rooms. A wound almost directly over the heart showed where the fatal bullet had emerged.

No one saw the shooting, Mrs. Osbecker, being interviewed, gave her knowledge of it as reported above.

Mrs. Alice Atchinson, who lives next door to Mrs. Osbecker, was in the latter's back room at the time, and was first to go toward the door when it was flung open. She says when she heard a disturbance she came out of the back room door, and saw, in the open door, Mrs. Ingleton being shoved forward by Livingston. He had the collar of her dress grasped in one hand and with the other had a hatchet raised over his head, as if to strike. Mrs. Atchison overcome by the horror of the scene, turned her head away, and when she looked again Livingstone was extended on the bed, his life blood flowing from his throat and Mrs. Ingleton was flying down stairs on to the street.

There will be a coroner's inquest to-morrow afternoon. The post mortem this evening shows that the bullet entered the back and came out at the breast. The facts so far are involved in mystery.

THE QUARANTINED STEAMER.

Removal of the Patient to the Pest House—The Passengers Vaccinated.

ASTORIA, Or., Feb. 6.—This morning the steamer Oregon was removed to quarantine grounds. While below Smith's point the smallpox patient was removed by boat up Young's river to the city pest-house by Health Officer Estes, who caused the bedding to be burned on the beach. The patient is accompanied by his brother. The Astoria city authorities sent out a nurse, and E. A. Noyes, the O. R. & N. Co.'s agent here, sent out supplies of all kinds.

To-day Health Officer Estes vaccinated all the cabin passengers and fumigated that part of the steerage in which the smallpox had been. To-morrow he will vaccinate the steerage passengers and finish fumigation of the vessel.

All communication between the ship and shore is strictly interdicted. No letters or newspapers are permitted to be sent ashore.

Dr. Estes suggests that if the O. R. & N. Co. sends down a river boat, the passengers can be transferred to-morrow, that boat quarantined, and the Oregon be allowed to proceed on her way to Portland.

FROM SALEM.

A Rehearing Granted in the Agricultural College Case.

SALEM, Feb. 6.—In the supreme court today, in the case of Liggett et al., appellants, vs. Ladd et al., respondents, on appeal from Benton county, a rehearing was granted. This is the famous Agricultural college case, and the foregoing decision has the effect of bringing the case for a rehearing in the supreme court, on demurrer. The demurrer was filed in the lower court, denying the right of Liggett and others to sue in the matter. This was sustained by Judge Bean and an appeal taken, whereupon the supreme court reversed him and sent the case back for trial on its merits. Now, however, the supreme court has granted a rehearing, and the law question on the right of Liggett and others to sue will be fully determined.

Dawson, respondent, vs. Rogers & Nickell, appellants; appeal from Jackson county; rehearing granted.

HE WAS SHAMMING.

Shackleford, yesterday bound over for attempted rape, pretended to fellow prisoners and officers to-day that he had taken poison. A doctor was sent for, and saw he was shamming, so a strong dose of ipecac was given him, which almost turned him inside out.

William Joseph, who assaulted the officer last night, got ten days in jail for drunk and disorderly conduct to-day, and will be booked for assaulting an officer when his time is out.

Articles of incorporation were filed to-day by the Coquille Co-operative Company, A. D. Moore, D. C. Randleman, F. J. Wentworth, J. E. Quick and J. H. James incorporators; capital stock, $5000; object, to transact a general mercantile business at Parkersburg, Coos county.

Stephen V. Knox, Weston, Umatilla county, has been appointed notary.

The Lone Highwayman Convicted—Whitefish for the Lakes.

SEATTLE, W. T., Feb. 6.—John Welch, "the lone highwayman," whose capture was effected some weeks since by Policeman Hanna after a desperate struggle, was tried in the district court to-day and was found guilty of intent to commit murder. Welch played the insanity dodge during the trial with consummate tact, but in one or two instances overacted and was detected. It is not known when he will be sentenced, but it will probably not be until after several other indictments for robbery against him have been disposed of.

George T. Myers, a cannery man, to-day brought from Portland 350,000 whitefish for deposit in the lakes about Seattle. One-half were placed in Lake Washington, one-quarter in Green lake, and the other quarter in Sammamish lake.

NOW LET THE PROCESSION MOVE.

President-Elect Harrison Has an "Official Organ" in Montana.

HELENA, Mont., Feb. 6.—The Morning Record, which was run as a republican campaign paper, has passed into the hands of the Harrison outfit. Its name will be changed, and a complete revolution made in its management. Russell B. will have charge of it, and it will be recognized here as the president's official organ for Montana. The intention is to make it a metropolitan paper. The new management will take charge in two or three days, as soon as they can get a new head.

POLITICAL TALK IN MONTANA.

A Proposition to Elect Two Senators and Send Them to Washington.

HELENA, Feb. 6.—There is a good deal of talk and comment in Helena and among the outside politicians that come in, about the feasibility of electing two senators from Montana, as South Dakota did, who could go to Washington and probably have some influence in getting through the bill for the admission of Montana before the closing of the present session. Whether, if a special session is called, the question will arouse sufficient interest to induce the legislature, which is now in session, to take such action, cannot be predicted from the surface indications. The legislature is republican, and those who advocate and favor the plan contend that it would be a good stroke of political policy. If such a turn is taken, there are plenty of prominent and ambitious aspirants to seek the empty honor. It is argued that no harm can result from electing two senators, who could go upon the ground at Washington and remain there, not only as citizen representatives, but "official" messengers, and in this dual capacity represent the title of Montana to statehood. There is a probability that the plan will be carried out.

FROM WALLA WALLA.

Improvement, Crime and Railroad Notes of General Interest.

WALLA WALLA, Feb. 6.—The city council last night recognized the valuable services of Dr. J. C. Blalock during the recent smallpox scare by voting their thanks and a present of $200.

City Clerk Kelling has received estimates for a sewerage system in this city from G. W. Waring, sanitary engineer, Newport, estimating the cost to Walla Walla, at $150,000. This is in response to official inquiries from the city, as a system will shortly be adopted here.

AGED ONE HUNDRED AND EIGHT.

Patrick Clark, a Pauper, Dies at Bozeman, Montana.

HELENA, Mont., Feb. 6.—Patrick Clark, a pauper, aged 108, died at Bozeman yesterday. He remembered distinctly the closing events of the last century in Europe, recalling the leading incidents of the twenty years' war. He saw the colony leave Ireland for Van Dieman's Land during the great famine, served several years in the English army, and came to America about 1840. His recollections of the Adams, Jackson, Van Buren and Harrison campaigns were interesting. He has been an inmate of the poor-house for four years.

FROM TACOMA.

Contest Over 160 Acres of Land in the City—Railroad Notes—Etc.

TACOMA, Feb. 6.—Suit has been begun by W. H. Wilton, as administrator of the estate of William B. Wilton, deceased, against R. R. Rogers and the executors of the late William McCaw, for 160 acres of land in Tacoma. Wilton says he is a son of W. B. Wilton, by an Indian woman, to whom the latter was legally married, and that the land is community property, to which he is entitled as heir at law. Rogers & McCabe held possession under a sheriff's deed, obtained in a suit for foreclosure of a mortgage, and had sold a small part before suit was commenced. After suit was commenced the money paid, amounting to over $4000, had to be refunded to the purchaser. Defendants claim perfect title, and say they will fight the case to the bitter end, as the property is worth over $250,000.

A PRESENT FOR MR. BUCKLEY.

J. M. Buckley, late assistant general manager of the Western division of the Northern Pacific railroad, was to-day presented with a magnificent jeweled Jorgenson gold watch, costing $700. The presentation was made by Superintendent Horner, on behalf of the employes and officials of the Western division, and the presentation speech was by Second Vice-President Prescott. In reply Mr. Buckley said his success as a railway man was due to the faithful and efficient service of those under him, and he wished them all prosperity under the new order of things on the road.

BEATEN BY THE LAW.

Harry Morgan has declared himself beaten, and thinks he has had enough law. Justice Senter fined him $25 this morning for selling liquor without license, and on three more similar charges this afternoon he was found guilty and was fined $50 for each offense. He then stated that he would quit selling for the present. In the meantime, certiorari proceedings are being taken, and an appeal bond will be filed to-morrow.

Row Between Partners.

VICTORIA, B. C., Feb. 6.—Captain Warren, owner of sealing vessels, a partner with Joseph Boscowitz, had a disagreement with the latter and parted company. Litigation has been going on for several weeks in an endeavor by Warren to secure title to his property. He recently sold a schooner, and counsel for Boscowitz, acting under instructions, wrote a letter to one of the purchasers of the schooner, charging Warren with fraud. Warren to-day entered an action for libel against Boscowitz, claiming $25,000 damage. Several years ago Warren assigned, and shortly before transferred certain property to Boscowitz. The creditors of Warren have now entered suit against Boscowitz to compel him to account for all property so transferred. Warren has again assigned for the benefit of his creditors.

The Wealth of Vancouver.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 6.—The assessment roll for 1889 shows an increase in the assessable value of real estate over last year of over 90 per cent. The amount for 1888 was $3,471,245, while for the present year it is $6,604,006. There is no assessment on personal property for municipal taxation. Nevertheless the rate of taxation on realty does not exceed 1 per cent., which provides for the expenses of the municipal government and interest and sinking fund of the debt. Prospects are that the increase this year will be even larger than last, not from inflated values of unimproved lots, but on account of the immense amount of building improvements going on.

Olympia Notes.

OLYMPIA, Feb. 6.—Judge Hewitt, of Chambers prairie, sold part of his farm yesterday for $10,000.

Memorial Exercises in Honor of Governor Bartlett.

SAM JONES, THE EVANGELIST.

Lively Experience of a Man Who Wouldn't Sign His Ticket—Notes From San Francisco and Elsewhere.

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 6.—A large audience gathered in the assembly chamber this afternoon to witness the Bartlett memorial exercises. The First artillery band played a funeral march. Immediately upon the assembly being called to order by Speaker Howe, the senate, headed by relatives of the late Governor and President White, entered in a body and took seats around the room, after which a roll call of both houses was ordered.

Rev. A. C. Bane, chaplain of the senate, invoked the blessing of the Almighty upon the proceedings.

Col. John P. Irish delivered the oration. "The present proceedings," he said, "are a fitting supplement to countless private expressions of sympathy for California in her sorrow. In our free society, the man is great who does his duty with clean hands. Washington Bartlett was such a man."

The speaker then referred to the late governor's early life. Following the intelligent habits of his ancestors, he early devised ways of self-support. Governor Bartlett owned a newspaper in Florida before he was bearded, and at the age of 22, was elected state printer of Florida. He then came to California, and brought his newspaper with him, which he reestablished in the new country.

The familiar history of Washington Bartlett's political career, up to his election as governor and subsequent demise, was referred to in detail. His success was attributed to his fidelity to the people. He resorted to no trick to catch the popular votes of the people.

The address was ordered spread upon the journals of both houses. Chaplain Early delivered a benediction, and adjournment was taken.

SAM JONES, THE EVANGELIST.

Conclusion of His Labors in the City of the Angels.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—Rev. Sam Jones concluded his series of revival meetings in this city this evening. He had an audience larger than at any of the previous meetings. It has been more or less publicly announced that at this meeting the reverend gentleman would dig deeply into the iniquities of the city and would mention the names of some principal sinners and their individual shortcomings. The preacher's discourse, however, was mainly devoted to the two newspapers whose criticisms of his utterances had displeased him. The only sinners mentioned by name were the editors of those papers. Jones leaves for San Francisco in a day or two to pursue his labors there.

HE WOULDN'T SIGN HIS TICKET.

Lively Experiences of a Man Hailing From Portland.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—A. M. Hamilton, who is executor of the estate of his father, who died not long ago in Portland, arrived here to-day, and tells a story of the manner in which he was treated by conductors over the Central Pacific.

"I was coming to California from the East. At Omaha I purchased a ticket, which was a first-class unlimited to San Diego, as I understood the roads were selling tickets cheaper to that point than to San Francisco, where I was bound. The agent at Ogden came aboard the Pullman car, and in a very offensive and overbearing manner commanded me to sign my name on my ticket. I looked at the ticket, and saw for the first time that there was a blank space for the signature, but becoming indignant at the insulting manner, I refused.

"'Well, if you won't sign you must pay your fare.'

"'I will not sign, and will not pay my fare,' said I. He went away, saying that I would have trouble with the conductor, which I did the next day. At Winnemucca a third conductor came on and tried to pull me out of my seat and throw me out of the car. At Rye Patch the conductor summoned all the train hands to take me out. They laid violent hands on me, but I drew a revolver, and climbing upon a curtain rail, pointed my weapon at the roof of the car, and told them I would protect myself if they did not keep off. They went away, and at Lovelock's, in Humboldt county, they brought in two deputy sheriffs, who put handcuffs on my wrists and led me out of the car."

On Wednesday last a justice tried the case, and Hamilton was at once discharged. On the night after the trial, Hamilton was tendered a reception by the citizens.

Hamilton's first step on arriving here was to consult his attorneys, and a suit will soon be brought against the railroad, in Nevada courts, for $100,000 damages for his treatment.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE STORY.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—Goodman, general passenger and ticket agent of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, speaking of the statement made by A. M. Hamilton, who claims that he was mistreated by the conductors, while en route here, says: "He will be very foolish to institute an action. He bought his ticket with the understanding that his name should be signed to it when required by the company. There is only one explanation of his conduct. He had a ticket for San Diego, Cal., and wanted to go to Portland, and consequently it was his intention to place the unused portions of the ticket in the hands of a scalper and make his passage to Portland, by that means. With his ticket unsigned it could be disposed of much easier. Our conductors did no more than is required by the company and, in no instance, did they exceed the orders received from the office."

A YOUTHFUL THIEF.

A Ten-Year-Old Boy Opens a Safe and Abstracts a Sack of Coin.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—A clever piece of burglary was executed in the shoe store of Pringle Bros. here yesterday. Three boys, aged about 10, 12 and 13 respectively, entered the store, and the eldest at once entered into negotiations for the purchase of a pair of slippers. The youngest boy watched the clerk overhauling the slipper drawer for a while, and then, having spied a cat in the store, began to play with it. He enticed the cat to the opposite side of the room, where the book-keeper's desk and safe were. The little burglar then drew the door of the safe open a few inches, and slipped his hand into the cash drawer and removed a sack containing $240. He then went on playing with the cat until the other boy had finished his purchases, when all three made off together. The theft was not discovered for about an hour, as the bookkeeper had gone to lunch. Detectives were at once notified, but thus far have no clue.

CALIFORNIA NEWS ITEMS.

Fast Mail Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 5.—The postoffice authorities are negotiating for the purpose of dispatching the mail by the Golden Gate special, and, if arrangements are satisfactorily completed, the mercantile community will have their mail delivered in New York about forty hours ahead of the regular time. On and after February 9 the special will leave at 8 P. M., arriving in Chicago at 3:25 P. M. the Wednesday following, and New York on Thursday at 4 P. M. The returning train will leave New York at 9 A. M. Monday, arriving at Chicago at 9:30 A. M. the day following and at San Francisco at 7 P. M. on Friday.

The Overland Traffic Dull.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—It is said that at no time during the last three years has the overland business been so poor on the Southern Pacific system as at present. In the yards at Oakland, Sacramento and Los Angeles, thousands of freight cars and hundreds of passenger coaches lie idle. They were purchased in anticipation of the continuance of the tremendous rush of last year. They are now apparently superfluous. Incoming and out-going overlands, both via the Central and Southern routes, are nearly empty. Railroad agents and ticket sellers agree that their business was never duller.

Change of Sleeping Car Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—General Passenger Agent W. A. Bissell, of the Atlantic & Pacific, received a telegram from Topeka to-day, announcing that the Pullman Company had closed its contract with the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe for the management of the second-class sleeping car service of that line. Phillips & Co., who with the Warners have run the business up to the present time, ran out their last train this evening.

Tom Ward, the Pugilist.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—Tom Ward, a late arrival from Tacoma, Washington territory, who won a battle from Mike Brannan (the Port Costa Giant) on a foul, after a hard fight of eleven rounds with skin-tight gloves, some four months ago, was given an opportunity this afternoon before the board of directors of the California Athletic club to show his abilities as a pugilist. Frank Allen, a clever boxer of the club, donned the gloves for a three-round go with the Northerner. The board of directors are favorably impressed with Ward, and will try to arrange a match for him with some of the best local boxers. Ward was weighed in tights and tipped the beam at 147½ pounds, but when in condition, will weigh about 138 pounds.

The Charge Was Not Sustained.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—The charge of felony and embezzlement which has been pending for some time against William J. Gavigan, special city counsel for the collection of delinquent taxes, was dismissed this afternoon by Judge Lawler, who said he did not believe the defendant had any intention of defrauding the city, although he might have been slow in making up his account. The money Gavigan was accused of embezzling was paid him by Public Administrator Pennie, and Gavigan gave a receipt for the amount.

Goldenson's Paintings.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—The parents of Alexander Goldenson, recently hanged for the murder of Mamie Kelly, have brought suit in a justice's court to obtain possession of 101 pictures, paintings and sketches, the handiwork of their dead son, which it is alleged are wrongfully held by Schusler Brothers, with whom they had been placed on exhibition by other parties. The value of the goods is placed at $100, and $100 damages is claimed. The case will come up next week before Justice Reimer.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 5.—Insurance Commissioner Wadsworth's report for '88 has been filed in the office of the governor. It shows that the amount of fire insurance risks written during the year was nearly $353,000,000, and that the losses paid amounted to over $3,000,000. Life insurance polices to the amount of $73,000,000 were in force on the last day of the year, while the losses and endowments paid amounted to nearly $1,250,000.

A Unique Pass.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—A unique annual pass has been received by General Agent Rank of the local office of the Denver & Rio Grande. The pass was issued by the Silverton Railroad Company, of Colorado, and is of solid silver, taken from the mines of the railroad. In one corner is engraved a representation of a railroad track with trains upon it, while the lettering, together with Rank's name, is handsomely chased.

Probably Fatally Injured.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—John D. Wans, a pork-packer, who has several stalls in the Arcade market, has been suffering from some brain trouble for the past month. While crossing the street this morning he had a fainting spell and fell in front of a team loaded with brick, and, before the driver could stop the horses, the wheels passed over Wans's body, probably fatally injuring him.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—A slight shock of earthquake occurred at 9:25 this evening.

The Seized Schooners.

Treating Made a Penal Offense.

AN UGLY DISCOVERY.

A Report That Should Be Read.

"A recent analyzation in Philadelphia by a celebrated chemist of ten popular brands of sarsaparilla discloses the astonishing fact that these ten samples of blood purifiers (?) contained in the aggregate sixteen different minerals, eleven of which were active poisons. Iodide of potash was discovered in every sample, mercury was found in all but two, while arsenic existed in six of the ten brands. But one brand was the pure article."

A reporter took the above clipping to E. Joy, the manufacturer of Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla. Mr. Joy exhibited no surprise. He said druggists knew it. He said he long ago saw the crying need for a safe and absolutely pure vegetable preparation of Sarsaparilla, hence his was named Joy's vegetable sarsaparilla because it contained nothing but pure syrup of sarsaparilla, combined with the pure juices of California's vegetable alteratives. Unlike potash sarsaparillas, it does not force impurities through the skin but stimulates the various secretive organs thereby correcting functional derangement and eliminating all impurities through the natural channels.—San Francisco Examiner.

PARNELL WAS PRESENT

Le Caron Continues His Sensational Testimony.

WHAT IS HIS EVIDENCE WORTH?

More About the Alleged Operations of the Parnellites in America—Alexander Sullivan Says It Is All Perjury.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Parnell was present at the session of the commission to-day. He held a lively conversation with Michael Davitt.

Beach, who is also known as Major Le Caron, continued his evidence. He described the conversation which he had with Alexander Sullivan in June, 1881, regarding the proposed alliance of the different Irish organizations, in which Sullivan said no radical change could be effected until they had charge of the representatives on this side of water, which would be very soon. Sullivan, referring to the visit to Ireland, which he contemplated making, said he could not think of Parnell's paying his expenses, as doing so would place Parnell in a false position. Parnell was bitterly opposed to the discussion of this matter in open convention, on the ground that it would leak out and compromise the Parnellite party.

The witness said that John O'Connor, at one time employed for carrying arms to Ireland, attended the convention as a representative of the supreme council of the Irish Republican Brotherhood.

The court overruled the objection, in behalf of Parnell, that the [illegible].

Witness said [illegible] before [illegible] for the purpose of carrying [illegible] expeditions. [illegible] never returned, and the organization has ever since supported his family and father. Witness believed that Lomasney and his brother Michael were in the London bridge explosion. Witness confirmed his testimony by telling of his attendance at the Chicago convention in January, 1882. He told of its organization, workings, etc.

During his testimony Parnell appeared in the court room. The evidence created a sensation. Witness looked steadily at Parnell for several moments. Witness said he sent copies of all the documents of the brotherhood to the English government at the time.

Witness said that Alexander Sullivan, of Chicago, once president of the Land League, went to England and remained there two months. After his return witness conversed with Sullivan about the plans for future warfare against England. Witness said that Sullivan told him that in the future men would be chosen for the work who would not exceed the orders given, like Gallagher, who gave himself away by enabling Jim McDermott to get information. Sullivan said that they would continue to send men to England to carry on an active dynamite war. Witness further said that [illegible] issued in 1883, every branch of the organization was commanded to endeavor to perfect itself in some particular branch of the war.

An open convention of the league met in Philadelphia, April 25. Witness attended as the Clan na Gael delegate of the Braidwood, Illinois, camp. He also represented the league. Egan did not attend the secret meetings, but he requested witness to inform him of all the details of the discussions, and declared that the programme was satisfactory to all the nationalists.

Chief Justice Hannen asked what he meant by the programme, and witness replied: "I meant the united programme for the future."

Witness said he saw Egan constantly during the convention. After the convention the Land League became the National League, of which Sullivan was president. Thomas Brennan attended the secret meetings, which it would have been impossible for him to have attended unless he had been a member of the "[illegible]" or "[illegible]."

Attorney General Webster read some accounts, including items of $[illegible] sent Egan at Paris, and $12,[illegible] sent Parnell. He also quoted from a cable dispatch, sent by Parnell to Mooney April 26, 1883. In this dispatch Parnell asks Mooney to present his (Parnell's) views to the convention, and advises the delegates to frame a platform that will enable the nationalists to continue to accept American assistance while avoiding offering England a pretext for the entire suppression of the nationalist movement, which, he says, is the only means for preserving the unity of the Irish movement in Ireland and America. He expressed himself as perfectly confident that the Irish cause would continue to advance by the exercise of prudence, moderation and firmness.

Witness, resuming his testimony, said that the circular issued September 6, 1883, said that the executive was unable to see its way to an armed insurrection until England should become involved in war. In the meantime secret war would be carried on. All informers, the circular said, were foredoomed.

[illegible] Sullivan said to him active operations were [illegible] of the revolutionary directory, their own organization being authorized to do the work. Sullivan said that in the future every one chosen should be without family and be an old and tried member. Before departing on the expedition, every man would be instructed in the use and management of explosives.

At the end of 1885 there was a split in the organization, the seceders retaining the old name, while others, under Sullivan's leadership, founded a new secret organization, entitled "U. S." The executive was reduced to three members. There being a wrangle, witness and the majority of the members of the camp joined the "U. S."

SULLIVAN INTERVIEWED.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Alexander Sullivan, ex-president of the Irish National League of America, speaking to-day in regard to the statements made about him by Major Le Caron before the Parnell commission at London yesterday, said that he knew Le Caron very slightly. The latter had represented himself to Sullivan as a Frenchman of most ardent Irish sympathies. He claimed to have served in the Union army and afterward in the Fenian organization.

Mr. Sullivan believes there was not a particle of [illegible] about Parnell's expressions of sympathy with any method, except open constitutional agitation, to aid Ireland. The whole story was another desperate effort to give color or excuse for continuing the case against Parnell.

The Evening News declares that LeCaron served in the Union army during the war, and intimates that both then and during his connection with the Fenians he acted as a spy for the British government. He had an office in this city on La Salle avenue, but left for Europe about Christmas.

PROCLAMATION BY THE EMPEROR.

A Touching Appeal to the Sympathies of His Austrian Subjects.

VIENNA, Feb. 6.—Emperor Francis Joseph, in an autograph letter to the premier, orders that publicity be given to the following proclamation:

[illegible]

The proclamation further expresses the [illegible] of the emperor and empress, and their sorrow-stricken daughter-in-law, for the sympathy extended them, and concludes by [illegible] God's help in the future, and the co-operation of the Austrian subjects with the [illegible] to secure the welfare of their fatherland.

[illegible]

[illegible], Feb. 6.—A dispatch to the [illegible] says: "In January, Rudolph addressed [illegible] direct to the pope, without his father's knowledge, to ask the liberty of obtaining [illegible] to marry again. The pope [illegible] to the emperor, and the result [illegible] between father and son [illegible] probably unhinged the father."

ITALY'S FOREIGN POLICY.

An Increased Taxation Demanded to Support Her Armament.

ROME, Feb. 5.—Signor Cavallotti, a member of the extreme left, to-day renewed his attack on the government's foreign policy. He accused the government of seeking to maintain peace by means of formidable armaments, instead of by promoting friendship among the nations. Crispi replied:

> No one desires peace more than we, but we cannot disarm when throughout Europe armaments are being pushed forward with redoubled activity and when fresh fortresses are being erected along the line of our own frontier. Italy cannot, from Arcadian sentiments, be the first to disarm. That would be adopting a childish policy, unworthy of practical statesmen.

Although the house warmly applauded the premier, distrust grows on every side over the condition of the country, arising from the financial burdens due to the armaments.

When the debate on the budget opens on the 15th the government will probably find a hostile majority arrayed against them, especially on the proposal to increase the taxation on landed property.

A SENSATIONAL STORY.

A Proposition by Floquet to Arrest General Boulanger.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—It is said that on the night of Boulanger's election Premier Floquet proposed to the cabinet that General Boulanger be arrested as a conspirator against the republic. A majority of the members agreed to this, but De Freycinet, minister of war, protested, exclaiming: "Why do you want to drown yourselves in blood?" The matter was then dropped. The Paris correspondent of the Times says that he believes the story is true, although he is certain it will be denied.

[illegible]

PARIS, Feb. 6.—The report that Boulanger has applied in the courts for a divorce is denied. It is asserted that he will continue his suit in the Paris courts.

FATAL COLLISION.

A Passenger Steamer is Sunk With All on Board.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The British bark Largo Bay, bound for Auckland, was towed to Southend to-day in a sinking condition. She reports that Monday night she was in collision with an unknown four-masted steamer off Beachy Head, and that the steamer went down with all on board. The seamen of the Largo Bay say that they are certain that the lost steamer carried passengers, and estimate that the crew and passengers together numbered at least 100 persons. The steamer sunk eight minutes after the collision occurred.

A CHINESE RIOT.

The British Consulate and Other Houses Wrecked by a Mob.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Advices from Shanghai state that a riot occurred at Ching Kiang Foo. The British consulate and seven houses belonging to foreigners were wrecked by the mob. The British man-of-war Mutine has been dispatched to Ching Kiang Foo.

FOREIGNERS IN GREAT PERIL.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Further advices say that the American consulate at Ching Kiang Foo was looted by the mob, that the European consulate was fired, and that the foreigners were fleeing over the hills for their lives.

THE SAMOAN SITUATION.

Opinion of a Gentleman Well Informed on the Subject.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—George H. Bates, late United States commissioner, was to-day asked by an Associated press reporter what, in his opinion, would be the probable effect upon the policy of our government of Prince Bismarck's recent orders to the German consul at Samoa and the commander of the German fleet. He said:

"I do not see why the more recent dispatches from Germany should affect the attitude of the United States. The proclamation of martial law and the assumption of a direct administration of affairs in Samoa by the German consul, which is now reported to have been disavowed by Prince Bismarck, were not the grievances which evoked the action of congress. The interposition of congress was invoked on account of previous [illegible] of the local German officials [illegible].

"In my judgment, the restoration of the status quo ought to be a condition [illegible] of the conference at Washington. [illegible]

"What do you think of the declaration of war by the German consul?"

"The proclamation of war seems to me utterly inconsistent with the restoration of the former status. If Germany goes to war in Samoa, it will [illegible] to have a conference at all. Of course, Germany can ultimately drive the Samoans into the sea and take their land by conquest. This would be no [illegible] the destruction of Samoan autonomy, than if it were done by [illegible]."

"What, if, however, we should insist on an absolute [illegible]?"

"If we consent to less than this, we may as well wash our hands of the whole business, and abandon all idea of preserving the neutrality of those islands."

When asked if the newspaper report was true that a part of his report on Samoa had been suppressed in the copy furnished congress, Mr. Bates said the query could be better answered when the report is published, if it is. He did not feel at liberty to comment on the matter.

FROM THE GERMAN STANDPOINT.

HAMBURG, Feb. 6.—The Hamburger Correspondent publishes a letter signed "Otto Heinrich," which gives the account of recent events in Samoa from a German point of view.

The letter says that the whole fight in Samoa occurred on German private property. The writer asserts that the United States steamer Nipsic supplied the rebels with ammunition, through Captain Leary, of the United States steamer Adams, and he deplores the fact that all efforts of the German consul to stop the sale of war munitions to the natives have proved futile.

[illegible] COAL.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The statement which has been made to the effect that vessels have been chartered by the United States to carry coal to Pago-Pago, is premature. The navy department is negotiating with shipowners to carry about 3,000 tons of coal from New York or Philadelphia to Pago-Pago coaling station, but no agreement has yet been reached. The last shipment of coal to this station was made in 1882, and the supply of 2000 tons sent at that time has not yet been exhausted. The fuel will cost the government a good price, the charge for transportation being from $12 to $15 per ton. It will take the vessel carrying the coal ninety days to reach its destination.

BISMARCK'S PROPOSITION ACCEPTED.

Secretary Bayard Consents to a Conference at Berlin.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Secretary Bayard has notified the German minister at Washington that this government accepts the proposition for the resumption at Berlin, of the conference begun at Washington, in regard to Samoa.

The president has approved of the joint resolution accepting the invitation of the German government to the United States to become a party to the international geodetic association.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The Times' Washington special declares that Secretary Bayard has formally accepted Bismarck's proposition for a conference in Berlin on the Samoan question.

[illegible]

The Evening Post prints the following headlines on the Samoan news: "A weak acquiescence—Secretary Bayard gently turns the other cheek for Germany to [illegible]. Bismarck's impudent proposition for a conference at Berlin on Samoa agreed to."

An Unhappy Denouement.

NICE, Feb. 6.—Miss Wilcox, who recently eloped with Dr. Sellon, has returned to her parents. Dr. Sellon has been placed in custody prior to his appearance before the correctional tribunal.

Take the Northern Pacific Railroad, the dining-car route for all points East. Office, No. 2 Washington street.

CRIME AND CASUALTY.

More About the Operations of the Bilk Wadsworth.

SMUGGLING ON THE FRONTIER.

Inspector Bonfield and Captain Schaack Removed—A Double Tragedy at Chicago—Perils of the Deep—Etc.

JAMESTOWN, D. T., Feb. 6.—"General" A. B. Ward's record is being shown up, and proves to be one of most unsavory character. During the late campaign he was almost constantly on the stump for Harrison, being one of the most brilliant orators who made speeches in Minnesota, Wisconsin and other Western states.

A Boston detective was here Monday, and left a circular with the police, giving a description of Ward's personal appearance and offering a reward for information of his whereabouts. His real name is said to be [illegible], and he has gone under [illegible] aristocratic names, among them that of A. B. Wadsworth, under which he lived at Spokane Falls. He has operated in the principal states of the Union as a [illegible], spiritualist, literary man and [illegible]. He is wanted for a forgery in Boston. He has five living wives and three daughters. He [illegible]. He is thought to be [illegible].

SMUGGLING ON THE FRONTIER.

Not Only Opium, but Chinese Women in Herds Conveyed Across the Border.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—The Tribune recently sent a reporter to Victoria, B. C., and to-morrow will [illegible] part of the [illegible]. The report deals at length with the [illegible] operations [illegible], and declares that the United States is cheated out of [illegible] every year by [illegible] and bonds to opium smugglers; also, that many Federal officers stationed on the border are corrupted by them, while others are so stupid as to be useless. The correspondent further declares the law against Chinese [illegible] to be flagrantly violated under the very noses of the Federal officers. Chinese women in herds are smuggled across the border and sold into slavery in the United States. In general, it is asserted that the people of the United States have not the slightest conception of the brazen lawlessness that exists on the northern frontier.

THE TIMES' STATEMENT CREDITED.

The Three Chicago Policemen Suspended, Pending the Trial of Their Cases.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Inspector Bonfield, Captain Schaack and Detective Lowenstein, the police officers whom the Chicago Times has been charging with corruption in office, were to-night indefinitely suspended from the police force.

The Times had charged that Lowenstein had been acting as a "fence" for stolen goods, and that Bonfield and Schaack, while over zealous against not only the anarchists, but honest workingmen as well, were virtually in league with the gamblers, saloon keepers, thieves and the demi monde. The first result of the charges was the filing of libel and damage suits against the Times, until the amount of damages asked from that paper is nearly a million and a half dollars.

The suspension order is signed by Mayor Roche, who begins it with the statement that the charges against the accused are made by a newspaper heretofore recognized as the organ of a political party. He disclaims any intention of determining by his actions whether the accusations are true or not. The ground for suspension is stated to be precautionary, and the court having declined to expedite trial of the case, suspension is ordered until ample time has been given for a judicial determination of the matter.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY AT CHICAGO.

A Worthless Husband Kills His Wife, and Then Commits Suicide.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—This morning, at the Hotel Cortland [illegible] W. S. Bradley [illegible] his wife and then committed suicide.

Both parties were well connected. Bradley was a nephew of W. H. Bradley, clerk of the federal court. Mrs. Bradley's maiden name was Watkins, and it is said she was related to Henry Watterson. Both were employed as reporters on a morning paper. Mrs. Bradley has been given an excellent reputation, but the husband was a black sheep. He got out of the penitentiary a few months ago, where he had served a sentence for embezzlement. Ever since he has been insanely jealous, particularly of Frederick Mann, of H. V. Mann & Co., linen drapers, who, while Bradley was in the penitentiary, was in the habit of visiting Mrs. Bradley when hunting night assignments. Mann was evidently very much in love with her, for, when the news of her death became known, he went to the morgue and made a scene, repeatedly kissing the cold, bloody lips of the dead woman, and heaping imprecations on the head of her dead husband.

SHIPWRECKED AND DROWNED.

Five Men Lost at Sea—Singular Coincidence.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The steamer James E. Kelsey, Captain J. Whelton, jr., arrived at this port from Wilmington, N. C., having on board Second Mate John Christensen and two seamen, the sole survivors of the crew of the schooner Allie R. Chester, sailing from New York, which had become disabled during a gale encountered on the trip from Charleston to Barrett [illegible] with phosphates, and stuck on the outer edge of Diamond reef, eleven miles south southeast of Cape Hatteras, January 24.

Captain Ingersoll, of the Chester, first Mate Wells, the cook and two seamen were drowned. The survivors were forty-seven hours lashed to the stump of the mizzen mast before they were discovered by Captain Whelton of the schooner Kelsey. Their rescue was accomplished with great difficulty. Twenty-four hours before they were rescued they sighted a life boat putting out from shore towards them, but it returned without coming near.

Captain Daley, of the life saving station, claims that he put out towards the wreck, but, seeing no signs of life on board, he returned, not caring to risk his life and those of his crew for nothing. Daley has since resigned, however.

A remarkable coincidence, in connection with this story, is the fact that it was discovered that at the very time when Captain Ingersoll was spending his last hours, lashed to the rigging of his vessel, his wife was dying of consumption at Woodstockville, New Jersey.

A FEARFUL EXPERIENCE.

Two Deserting Sailors Picked Up in a Frozen Condition.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The Fall River boat Old Colony to-day brought in a sailor named Laurence Kaldoon, who was badly frozen, and the corpse of another man, who is known only as "Bill."

Kaldoon says that he sailed from New York the morning of the 4th, in the schooner J. W. Barnes, Captain McDonald, for South Africa. Before sailing, and after the voyage had begun, the crew was treated most atrociously by the captain and mate, and they resolved to make a raft from some planking and logs on deck and desert at night. Because they could not make a raft large enough to hold all of the sailors, they drew lots to see which two should escape. Kaldoon and "Bill" won the prize and launched the raft at 11 o'clock last night. They expected to make shore, but the wind shifted and carried them out into the middle of the Sound. A heavy sleet storm prevailed, and they were washed overboard.

At [illegible] this morning the Old Colony picked them up. Restoratives were used, and the half frozen men were rolled in hot blankets and rubbed. "Bill" was beyond human aid. He gasped a few times and then died. Kaldoon is getting along well. Captain Hamilton says the men were encased in ice when rescued, and that he had no idea of saving the lives of either of them.

A CONSUMMATE SCOUNDREL.

Discovery of a New Villainy on the Part of Sullivan the Defaulter.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 6.—Another characteristic transaction of absconding County Clerk Sullivan's came to light to-day. It seems that when Simon Coy, the tally-sheet forger was sent to the Michigan City penitentiary, together with Attorney Bernhamer, about two years ago, he owed Sullivan $1500 for money advanced for the expenses of the trial. In order to secure Sullivan, Coy deeded to the latter his home in this city with the understanding that on the expiration of Coy's imprisonment it should be deeded back. In a few weeks, it appears, Sullivan sold the property and, in order to avoid exposure, told the man who purchased it that he did not want Mrs. Coy disturbed until her husband was liberated, and that he would pay her rent. He paid but one month's rent before he skipped.

It was also learned this evening that the sum of $1290 raised by Coy's friends for the support of his wife, and which had been placed in the hands of Sullivan as trustee, had been appropriated to the last cent by that enterprising gentleman. Mrs. Coy now finds herself robbed of her home and of the money contributed by friends for her support.

CRIME NOTES AND ACCIDENTS

A Forger Arrested.

TUCSON, Feb. 6.—United States Marshal Gillespie to-day arrested Sam Ford, a Chicago forger, for whom the Pinkertons offer $[illegible] reward. Gillespie was handed a photograph of Ford on the train, and the latter, when shown the photograph, finally acknowledged himself to be Ford. He said he had forged checks on National banks of Kankakee and Champaign, Illinois, to the amount of $[illegible]. He offered Gillespie $[illegible] in diamonds for his release. He had a through ticket to New Orleans, and is now in jail.

An Infernal Machine.

Blot on Conspiracy.

[illegible], Feb. 6.—The state senate to-day passed the "White Cap" bill, making it a felony conspiracy for three or more persons to combine for the purpose of doing any unlawful act while wearing white caps or being otherwise disguised, and fixing the penalty at a fine of $[illegible] and imprisonment for not less than two years.

A Diabolical Deed.

SAULT STE MARIE, Mich., Feb. 6.—A horrible murder was committed at Little Current, Ontario, 140 miles east of here, Saturday last. Christiana Toronto, a half-breed, was outraged by five Indians, and then literally torn to pieces. Two of the murderers were this morning lodged in jail.

Another Defaulting Cashier.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Feb. 6.—W. W. Bussey, paying teller of the Eagle and Phenix Savings bank, has disappeared. A partial examination of his accounts reveals a shortage of $2500.

A Fatal Fall.

VIRGINIA, Nev., Feb. 6.—Edward Mulcahey, a miner employed in the Yellow Jacket, was found dead this morning at the foot of the waste dump at that mine. It is supposed that he fell from a trestle on which waste rock is hoisted to the surface and is run out for dumping. The trestle is ninety feet above the level of the street. Deceased was seen alive on the divide this morning, intoxicated.

A Report Discredited.

ALBANY, Feb. 6.—A dispatch from Gloversville says that the story of the Pine lake disaster, reported last night, is generally discredited there, but that no definite information can be obtained, as the blizzard has interrupted all communication with Pine lake.

COLLAPSE OF THE STRIKE.

It Is a Very Heavy Blow to the Knights of Labor.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Strikers are flocking to the various street car headquarters applying for work. In all cases they are required to sign papers declaring that they will no longer be subject to the orders of any labor organization. The collapse of the strike is a very heavy blow to the Knights of Labor.

TWO THOUSAND MEN IDLE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The result of the [illegible] of work. [illegible] The loss to the companies is estimated at $[illegible]; to the men, $60,000. In Brooklyn the railroads are slowly resuming travel, with much opposition. The strikers are certainly beaten.

BROOKLYN'S [illegible].

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The tie-up on the Atlantic avenue lines of Brooklyn to-day shows a [illegible] meeting the same fate as the late tie-up on the surface roads in this city.

THE STRIKE DECLARED OFF.

BROOKLYN, Feb. 6.—The strikers to-night accepted Deacon Richardson's terms. They signed an agreement in which willingness is expressed to return to their work entirely, as individuals, and to take the places, as nearly as possible, that they held before the commencement of the strike. The document also stipulates that the recently engaged men shall have precedence over the late employes, and declares the strike fully and entirely off.

OUR ELEVATOR SYSTEM.

Vast and Varied Misinformation From the East.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—A special from Minneapolis says: "The plans of F. H. Peavy & Co., of that city, to meet the wants of the great wheat growing sections of Western Montana and Washington territory, has come to a head in the corporation of the Pacific Coast Elevator Company. A terminal elevator, with a capacity of 750,000 bushels, will be built at once at Portland, and a score or more of country houses all along the line of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company's road, each with a capacity of 20,000 to 75,000 bushels. It is planned to have everything in running order by next August, when the firm will commence exporting. All shipments will be in sack to Liverpool by Cape Horn. This is going to revolutionize the wheat business in these two territories. Hitherto shipments have all been made to San Francisco. Now Portland will become the key to the situation."

News Items From Seattle.

SEATTLE, W. T., Feb. 6.—L. Pigeon was to-day convicted of grand larceny in the district court.

It is announced that the Pacific Coast Steamship Company will, on March 1, place a third steamer on the route between Puget sound and San Francisco, making trips every five days, instead of weekly, as at present. It is not improbable that the heavily increasing business of the company will necessitate the addition of a fourth vessel some time in the summer. The two vessels on the route now are the Umatilla and the Walla Walla, and the third will be the Mexico.

Manager McNeill, of the Oregon Improvement Company, to-day issued orders to the agents of the company at Newcastle, Franklin and Seattle to hereafter favor Seattle when purchasing supplies. The company heretofore has been making its purchases largely outside of Seattle. The amount aggregates about $[illegible] annually, and at least two-thirds of this will now come to Seattle.

Mr. Angus Mackintosh, manager of the Seattle & Eastern Construction Company, left yesterday for New York. His mission is understood to be the perfection of negotiations for funds to continue the construction of the Seattle, Lake Shore & Eastern railway in the spring.

Severe Weather in Canada.

MARQUETTE, Mich., Feb. 6.—The winter has set in with terrible earnestness at last. A blizzard has prevailed all over the upper peninsula. Trains have been delayed on some of the railway lines. PORTLAND, THURSDAY, FEB. 7.

VETO OF THE WATER BILL.

Governor Pennoyer who can always be trusted to act upon erroneous notions when opportunity is offered, has fulfilled expectations in vetoing the Portland water bill. It is not at all surprising that one who contended so long and vehemently as he did, for taxation of the credit of the United States, and who, in fact, has not yet surrendered this dream of folly, should now want to tax the credit of Oregon's municipalities.

There is no need of doubt or contention upon this subject, the proper line of procedure is perfectly plain. Any work performed by public authority for public use should be taxed neither in its methods nor results. It is admitted that the water works of a city should not be taxed after they are created. The same principle exempts from taxation the means employed for creating them. Any tax upon the bonds of a state, county or municipality is simply a tax upon public credit, and in no state save Oregon would such a thing obtain serious consideration.

The argument that the bonds when sold become private property and therefore should be taxed, is untenable, because any attempt to carry out the proposition only defeats the principle that the public credit should not be subjected to taxation, that the means employed by the public for effecting a public object never should be taxed. The assumption that if these bonds are not taxed their holders will be invested with special privileges is unfounded, because the holders will have paid for the exemption from taxation in the increased price given for the bonds; and if the bonds are really to be taxed, the city will receive just so much the less for them and the tax, therefore, will not come out of the bond holder but out of the water consumer—that is, out of the whole people of the city.

But, of course, no tax will ever be collected from the bonds. The proposition to tax, if it does not prevent the sale of the bonds, will drive them out of the state, and moreover the refusal to exempt them from taxation will be employed as a means of preventing their sale at prices that otherwise would be tendered. In no circumstances can the state make a penny by refusing to exempt the bonds from taxation but the refusal may do great injury to the credit of the city of Portland and oppress its poor by compelling them to pay higher water rates. Taxation of the bonds will not bring into the treasury a farthing from "the wealthy classes;" it can only oppress the poor. It is the collective credit of a city that gives value to its water bonds, and this collective credit is founded on the fact that all persons must have water. Only a few are rich; the masses are poor. It is consumption of water by the masses that makes the city's credit and gives value to the bonds, and when the bonds are depreciated by taxation or other cause, the credit of the masses, which should be employed to get them a cheap supply of good water is attacked, and the man who attacks it is their enemy and helps at their expense—though professing to be their friend—to fill the coffers of the rich, who keep the bonds out of sight and reach, and yet use the fact that the bonds are liable to taxation as a means to prevent the city from getting for them the highest value at their sale.

It is not Portland alone that is interested in maintenance of the right principle in this case. All the municipalities in the state, all the counties, are alike interested in it. As a business proposition the argument presented in the governor's message is fit only for bedlam, in any other state than Oregon it would not be seriously debated, but mercilessly ridiculed and contemptuously rejected. The bill ought to be passed over the veto by a decisive vote.

THE HUMOR OF IT.

Captain Richard Hoyt, who pilots vessels on the river and sits in the common council of Portland,—though which employment of the two he regards as his occupation and which his diversion THE OREGONIAN does not know—has been at Salem almost constantly during the session using his endeavors to prevent reduction of pilotage or abolition of the compulsory feature of the river pilot system. On Tuesday night he appeared before the legislative committee on commerce with the statement that the proposed rate of $2 a foot and 2 cents per ton on all over 1000 tons would not give him and his fellow pilots as much money as they wanted, and that a more satisfactory rate would be $2 per foot and 3 cents a ton on all over 500 tons.

Captain Hoyt and his associates appear to think that the object of the pilot laws is not to assist commerce, but to furnish them with emoluments. They have been in the business so long that they regard themselves as having vested rights in the premises, and their contention is that no vessel shall pass up or down the river without being subjected to compulsory pilotage and that they as princes of the river resting on indefeasible rights are the persons who are entitled to say what rates will be satisfactory.

No recent farce has exceeded this one of calling in the pilots to give an opinion as to whether the pilot rates ought to be reduced or not, or whether river pilotage ought to be compulsory or not. These gentlemen of course want fees. And they want the biggest fees they can possibly get. We do not remember, however, that the legislature when it proposed some years ago to reduce the fees of county officers called in the sheriffs and clerks to ask whether the proposed reduction would be "satisfactory" to them or not.

MORAL LEGISLATION.

A bill to prohibit horse-racing on Sunday has reached the judiciary committee of the senate. It might be well to try to enforce some of the simple provisions of the Sunday law that has been so long upon our statute books before a bigger and more difficult job is undertaken. Horse-racing on Sunday is not, it is true, an amusement of which moralists approve, although men of average respectability have been known to attend such races, but, inasmuch as attendance upon them is not compulsory on Sunday or any other day, those who do not desire this sort of amusement are free to let it alone.

The difficulty is not in passing laws of this character, but in enforcing them, as the record of the gambling laws in this state fully attests. Horse-racing is not, indeed, done in a corner or under cover of darkness like gambling. Neither however is prize fighting, a stringent law against which, whether the prize fight takes place or is merely arranged to take place, is in full force in this state, yet every one knows that this law has been violated with impunity. So while this bill may pass, as others of similar intent have in times past, it will scarcely receive the affirmative vote of any member in the belief that its enactment will effectually do away with Sunday horse racing.

As long as the present diversity of opinion in regard to what constitutes recreation or amusement prevails, there will be people who will spend their Sundays in various ways that would have shocked the Plymouth colony. About the only thing that the individual can hope to do in the premises is to control his own actions, and those of his household, while the children thereof are minors. There is a wide field for endeavors in this comparatively circumscribed circle, and until it is more thoroughly worked, laws that are directed against popular vices will be prohibitory in name and intent only.

SAMOA AND SAMOANS.

Honolulu is nearly in the line of vessels sailing from San Francisco to the Samoan islands. It is 2880 miles from San Francisco to Honolulu and 3815 miles from Honolulu to Samoa. The Samoan islands, moreover are nearly in the direct track of vessels sailing from Honolulu to Auckland, New Zealand.

The islands that form the Samoan or Navigators' group are about twelve in number, the four larger are Manua, Tutuila, Upolu and Savaii. The area of the whole group is estimated at only 2650 square miles. In places the islands rise to an elevation of 2500 feet above the sea; the population of the whole group is estimated at 30,000 to 35,000.

The Hartford Courant quotes from a work just issued on "The Great Value and Success of Foreign Missions" to show that the Samoans are now all professedly Christians. It appears from this record that the natives have been required to pay for their religious books, Bibles included, and as a result they have paid $15,571, which the British and Foreign Bible Society has taken in—thus saving not only a whole race but a handsome pile of money too. Moreover the native churches of Samoa have in the last twenty years contributed on an average of $6000 a year (or $120,000) to the London Missionary Society. They are now mortgaging their lands to raise money to fight each other, and the European residents, whether professedly Christian or not is not stated, are furnishing the funds upon this security.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETING.

A special meeting of the Board of Trade of Portland is called for 10 o'clock this morning, to take further action upon the subject of pilotage and towage. This subject is now before the legislature and it is a matter of the greatest importance that it be rightly dealt with, and therefore that all information that can contribute to a proper understanding of the situation be submitted to the law making power.

It is understood that the immediate occasion of the call for this meeting arises from the announcement that a communication has been received from Mr Holcomb, general manager of the Union Pacific system, in which that gentleman desires to inform the board, and through the board all whom it may concern, that in case the legislature shall pass the Northup bill (house bill No 37) substantially as introduced, rates will be made for towage and pilotage on the Columbia bar and river as low as towage rates alone to and from Puget sound ports and the sea, and Mr Holcomb offers to pledge the O R & N Company to carry out these conditions.

The letter sent by Mr Holcomb will, it is understood, be submitted to the Board of Trade at the special meeting this morning. It is a matter of great importance and a full attendance is desirable.

The Blair educational bill continues to be discussed North and South with a vigor that atones in some degree for the platitudes presented. Most or at least a large part of the opposition to the measure comes from the South, some resenting the proffer as an impertinence, others objecting on constitutional grounds, and still others regarding the plan of helping those who can and should help themselves as pernicious, and in that it saps self respect and abrogates independent effort. Professor Woodward of South Carolina college, Columbia, admits that the South needs additional educational facilities but says: "We do not need book learning so much as we need training in independence, and reliance. But this depends on self help and self denial." The idea that any system of general education to be really helpful must be the outcome of the people's earnest efforts to supply a need that they keenly feel is one that commends itself to practical people.

Senator Barin of Clackamas is the author of a bill that is now in the hands of the judiciary committee authorizing state courts to set aside a part of the earnings of neglectful husbands for the support of their wives. Could such a law be actively enforced it would relieve many a worthy woman from the humiliating necessity of accepting charitable aid for herself and family or the common alternative of applying for a divorce on the ground of failure to provide. While there would be a good deal of the "first catch your hare" difficulty encountered in enforcing such a law it might operate beneficially in compelling men who object to sharing their earnings with their families to "move on" if they preferred that alternative to buying more bread and meat and less whisky.

Professor Bell in a letter to the census committee of the United States senate says that from indications shown by carefully compiled and compared statistics the congenital deaf mutes of the country are increasing at a greater rate than the general population. This he attributes to the tendency among these people to intermarry, a tendency that has largely increased during the past third of a century or more. Statistics show that not less than 90 per cent of deaf mutes who marry, marry deaf mutes, and the opinion is expressed that the continuous intermarriage of congenital deaf mutes from generation to generation may result in the formation of a deaf variety of the human race in America.

NEW TRANSCONTINENTAL LINE.

What the Montana Pacific Offers to Shippers and Passengers.

The Montana Pacific through line between Portland and St Paul via the O R & N, Union Pacific, Montana Central and St Paul Minneapolis & Manitoba railway is now open for freight and passenger traffic, with as low rates and as quick time on freight as can be made by any other line between Portland and St Paul. Passengers taking this line will pass through Butte, the greatest mining camp on the face of the earth. The gold, silver, lead and copper mines may be seen along the side of the track for a distance of nearly 100 miles, while the scenery between Butte and Helena, and in the canyon of the Missouri cannot be surpassed anywhere in North America.

Palace sleeping and luxurious dining cars, magnificent day coaches and free sleeping cars for second class passengers leave Butte daily, making close connection with the Union Pacific, for St Paul. This line is laid with 75-pound steel rails, oak ties and easy grades, while the cars, both first and second class are new and of the latest design, equipped with steel tired wrought iron wheels, thus insuring to its patrons the greatest safety possible. Ask any agent of the O R & N Co for tickets via this line.

PORTLAND AND VICINITY.

ACCIDENT TO C A MALARKEY — Yesterday morning as C A Malarkey was going to his place of business from his home at No 255 Morrison street he met with a singular accident, which was most unexpected. When he reached a point as far as Seventh street he concluded to stop in to see George Langford, the contractor of the brickwork on the new Portland hotel In order to see Mr Langford it was necessary for him to ascend the ladders to the upper floor, where the men were at work This he accordingly set in to do. As he got near the third floor a brick fell down from the Fourth story, striking him squarely on the head For a moment he felt as if he were stunned, but with remarkable presence of mind he retained hold of the ladder until assistance arrived Several men at once came to his rescue and carried him down A hack was then summoned and he was removed to his home, where Dr Holt Wilson attended his injuries. The wound was found to be not as serious as at first supposed, there was quite an ugly scalp wound, but no fracture of the skull It is thought the force of the falling brick must have been considerably broken by the stiff derby hat Mr. Malarkey was wearing at the time A peculiar circumstance in connection with this mishap is the fact that Mr Malarkey was yesterday celebrating the twenty fifth anniversary of his wedding Instead, however of getting a silver brick he got a real brick and a "trust" brick at that

A SLICK SWINDLER —Several days ago a man representing himself to be a resident of Columbia slough, called at the livery stable of James Logan in East Portland, and hired a horse and buggy. He said that he wanted the horse and buggy for the purpose of attending a funeral at Albina. When he got the rig he did drive off in that direction, but instead of returning with it to the stable he came across to Portland and endeavored to sell the outfit to a saloonkeeper named Smith, doing business at the corner of Front and Jefferson streets. Smith, not being in need of a horse introduced the man to Dr Rose who happened to be there at the time. The doctor did not want a horse either, but he had the sale of a horse belonging to another man and a trade was proposed After considerable bantering an exchange was made, the doctor giving $20 in the bargain The strange man left his newly traded horse in the livery stable, stating that he would call for it the next morning The next morning, however, he failed to materialize. The East Portland livery man came after his horse the same day, but neither the strange man nor the $20 have been seen since The man is described as having light complexion, sandy hair mustache of the same color and cut perfectly straight, and about 40 or 45 years of age

A VERY PAINFUL INJURY —A correspondent writing from Forest Grove yesterday says The little sufferer, Mathias Chaldelin, of the Nehalem valley, aged fourteen, who encountered such a painful accident about six weeks since by being struck above the left eye with a maple limb has improved to the extent that his father brought him to this place a few days since, and consulted a surgeon who deemed an operation necessary to relieve him. The patient has suffered continually since the misfortune The accident fractured a number of small pieces of the frontal bone at the inner portion of the left supra-orbital notch, also the soft parts. The wound healed a portion of the way from without inward and the small fractured pieces lodged in the portion of the wound not healed and being foreign bodies caused a severe inflammatory condition which extended to the right optic nerve, and produced total blindness in that organ The surgeon performed a neat operation yesterday and removed the fragments, and his opinion is that the boy will entirely recover

DECIDED IMPROVEMENTS.—The immigration board is making extensive arrangements for a new department to the rooms. A table has been made running about three fourths of the way down the north side of the room, and has been placed there for the purpose of holding a display of the manufactories in the state. Already the largest corporations have been solicited and their answers not being all sent in, the progress of fitting up this part of the establishment is somewhat delayed This is a new feature and will doubtless tend to create a broad and generous spirit of rivalry and emulation beneficial to the state at large. On the south side of the room has lately been erected a mammoth fan made out of the different grasses and grains produced by the farmers of Oregon The board is gradually making improvements, and no doubt, as the influx of foreigners and immigrants increases will also the interest in this work be augmented

BILLS BY THE ALPINE CLUB —The members of the Alpine club are confident that the measures brought up in the legislature through their efforts will meet with the approval of all members when the objects and purposes of the measures become fully understood The deer skinning bill (House bill No 4?) has already been advanced to its third reading and there is thought to be no question but what the unanimous vote of both houses will be given in its support The bill for establishing a state mining bureau has been referred to the committee on mining Colonel Harrington has charge of this bill, and he will see that it gets a just consideration House joint memorial No 8, petitioning congress to set aside a portion of the Cascade range of mountains for a national park, has been referred to a special committee, with Judge Waldo, of Salem as chairman

FISH CAR GONE.—Mr J Frank Ellis, in charge of the fish commission car, yesterday packed the white fish eggs which had been in his hatchery apparatus in ice, and the car will leave this morning for Cœur d'Alene lake The water is so warm here that the eggs would all have been hatched out by Saturday, and as all his cans have been sent off to Lake Klamath he could not have taken care of the young fish So he treats them to a dose of arrested development and will have them hatch out near where they are to be planted. After getting rid of the whitefish Mr Ellis will return here and go south on the O & C, to bring a million or a million and a half of salmon and trout fry from the McCloud river to place in the Rogue and Umpqua rivers, and then will come back this way en route for Washington

AN IOWA ABSCONDER.—The singular success attained by local detectives in bringing murderers to the scaffold not to mention registered letter robbers may encourage some to try their hand in locating an absconder from Bevington Iowa as there is a prospect he has come this way He is wanted by the United States Express Company about $2000 worth, and a description of him has been received here by the local authorities His name is S F Higens He is about thirty years old, wears a dark moustache and shaves with irregularity is tall and lame in the left leg Higens left Bevington on the 12th of this month and W H Quick the Des Moines manager of the company is after him with a liberal reward

A PORTLAND LADY IN IRELAND —Landlord Lewiston of the International is in receipt of a letter from Mrs Lewiston his wife who is now in Ireland looking after her share of her mother's estate Mrs Lewiston writes that the judge who was to pass upon the property rights involved died inopportunely enough two days before the trial came on The vacancy will have to be met through the usual swift methods of her majesty's government, and Mrs Lewiston's return promises to be delayed longer than she originally anticipated. The prospect is considered good, however for a successful issue of her transatlantic mission

IT MAKES THEM BETTER —George Hanlon and Willie Brown the two young highway robbers sent to the penitentiary some time ago for holding up several messenger boys are reported to be getting more subdued since their [illegible] In the absence of a state reformatory the penitentiary is the only proper place for [illegible] The boys are required to work strictly [illegible] for [illegible] they soon learn how to [illegible] Mr [illegible] of the Boys and Girls Aid society has just returned from a visit to this institution and states that the boys are getting more steadily [illegible] down

MISS MOORE'S LECTURE —A full and [illegible] audience listened to a temperance lecture delivered last night at the Tabernacle by Miss Henrietta G Moore The lecture was listened to with great interest The address caused much enthusiasm to be manifested and after the meeting she received many hearty congratulations Miss Moore will lecture in East Portland Friday evening of this week at the W C T U hall on the corner of Tenth and J streets

A MOST DESERVING CAUSE Next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock forty five of Portland's musicians will give a benefit at the New Park theater for Ed Kiessling a young man who is hopelessly ill with the consumption Mr Kiessling is only 27 years old and is well known in this city For nine years he has been the trombone player in Parsons's orchestra See OREGONIAN for programme

SENDING RECRUITS The following order has been issued from Vancouver barracks February 2 The commanding officer Vancouver barracks will send the following named recruits Fourteenth infantry, to the stations of their respective companies Wilmot C William, Josiah [illegible] ariner and Chirel Anderson Company K to Fort Klamath John W Miller Company A to Fort Townsend

NAVY YARD COMMISSION —The commission appointed to select a site for a navy yard in the Northwest left San Francisco last night and will be here at 10 A M to-morrow The headquarters of the commission while here will be at the office of Captain [illegible] United States Light house inspector in the council building, northeast corner of Third and Washington streets

BLOOMING ROSES A gentleman who has a fine selection of rose bushes in his garden yesterday plucked a full blown Gloire de Dijon rose and another of the Madame Etienne variety half opened He has a hundred or more buds in his garden which will be open in a short time This is quite cheering compared with the state of affairs last winter

THE SPUD MARKET The bole in the potato market where the bottom used to be has now dropped out. Burbanks are selling for 45 cents and Garnet Chiles for 40 cents per sack The farmer will not haul potatoes at these rates so there is nothing doing in this fruit.

Lowndale has accepted the position The choir now consists of Mrs. Courson, soprano, Mrs Reid, contralto, Mr Franklin, tenor, and Mr Lowndale, basso Competent judges consider this without doubt the finest quartette choir on the Pacific coast.

RETIRED —J B N Bell yesterday retired from the management of the Chemeketa hotel says the Statesman the close connection of the house and barroom being a seeming contradiction of his well known religious and temperance principles though at no time was he interested in the traffic of the saloon part.

BEATS THE DUTCHMAN'S ONE PER CENT — Twenty days ago a party bought two lots in Highland, paying $50 down on each lot, actual money paid $100 Yesterday they were sold at an advance of $150 profit for the use of $100 for twenty days Pretty fair profit. Will some one please tell what per cent it is.

SENSATION IN EDUCATIONAL CIRCLES

Proposition to Get Rid of Mr. Wetzell and His County Institute as Well

On the evening of January 11 a meeting of the school board was held at the high school County Superintendent of Schools Wetzell was present and unfolded to the board his hopes and plans for the county teachers institute, which he had set for February 20, 21 and 22 He wished to make the institute the occasion for the revival of public interest in educational matters, and asked the board to render what encouragement and assistance it could. They complied by tendering him the use of the assembly hall for the institute and by voting Thursday, the 21st, for a holiday to allow the teachers of the city to attend the institute as they are by law required to do so

Since that time Superintendent Wetzell has been making his arrangements hopefully for the institute, proposing to open it with a grand educational mass meeting on the evening of the 20th engaging leading citizens to address the meeting, and otherwise bestirring himself with his usual energy and forethought.

A small cloud of war and trouble, something larger than a man's hand has now appeared upon the horizon, and a bomb threatens to burst which will paralyze the institute at least on its present basis.

A bill has been introduced at Salem by W M Ladd member of the school board and legislature as well which contains snugly tucked away among other provisions the following:

"Sec 2 —The county school superintendent of the county in which such district may be located shall have no supervision over the schools of such district, nor shall he exercise any authority or control over the teachers employed therein, nor shall the teachers so employed in such district be required to attend or participate in any county or teachers institutes held by or under the authority of the county superintendent

Sec. 5 —Inasmuch as there are serious defects and omissions in the act of which this act is amendatory this act shall take effect and be in force from and after its approval by the governor "

The sections are proposed amendments to the existing school law regulating the school affairs of cities of over 10,000 inhabitants. Out of the 57 school districts of the county there are between 80 and 90 teachers employed in Portland, and their proportion of the responsibilities and advantages of the teachers institutes have hitherto been no small feature of the whole The county superintendent has been having the duty and privilege of looking after the entire school matters of the constituency which elects him There is no provision in the bill exempting the city from choosing as it has always done by the preponderance of its vote, the superintendent for the country schools.

THE PIONEERS' FRIEND.

Presentation to the State of Dr. McLoughlin's Portrait.

PROCEEDINGS IN JOINT SESSION.

Hon. John Minto Speaks on Behalf of the Pioneer Association, and Gov. Pennoyer Responds for the State.

SALEM, Feb. 6.—In presenting to the state of Oregon, on behalf of the Oregon Pioneer Association, the large oil portrait of Dr. McLoughlin that has recently adorned the senate chamber in the capitol, Hon. John Minto spoke as follows:

Governor and Representatives of the State of Oregon:—At the request of the Oregon Pioneer Association I appear before you in its behalf to present to you, for placement among those of the notable men of this yet young commonwealth, the portrait of the most potent friend and benefactor of those who planted the seeds of peace and social order in this fair land.

Of Dr. John McLoughlin's origin, we have little precise information. Such as we have indicates that he was of a Highland Scotch family, born in the Canadian province of Quebec, educated as a physician, but joining while yet young the Canadian association of fur traders known as the Northwest Company, and soon rising to prominence among his associates. His subordinate, friend and admirer, Dr. W. F. Tolmie, tells us that "when, in 1821, the Northwest Company and Hudson's Bay Company coalesced, Dr. McLoughlin strove sturdily for better terms for those bearing the burden of the work in the fur country as against the London directors (the contest being in fact a struggle of labor against capital), and refused to sign the deed poll, or agreement, between the London shareholders and their commissioned officers in Rupert's land and so far Columbia. Notwithstanding this self-assertion, Dr. McLoughlin, on account of his high character and practical ability, was selected for the Columbia in 1824." Assuming charge in 1824, he became virtually autocratic ruler of all the country then known as Oregon, extending from the Rocky mountains to the Pacific, and from California to Alaska. From Dr. McLoughlin's own hand we have the statement of the first beginnings of agriculture in this now teeming region, by the planting (under his direction) of "potatoes and peas in 1825, and the reception from York factory in the fall of the same year, of one bushel each of wheat, oats, barley, and corn, and one quart of timothy seed, which was planted in 1826. From the small beginning the crop of 1828 was such as to enable the post at Vancouver to dispense with the importation of flour, etc." At this date of 1828, he tells us that he "gives to Etienne Lucier his advice to settle in the Willamette valley as a farmer, expressing the opinion to him that wherever wheat would grow the country would be settled."

From this date we see him assisting settlers without regard to nationality, and for reasons of "morality and policy" refraining from trading in spirituous liquors, and persuading American traders to the same course. From a stock of cattle numbering but twenty seven head, of all sorts and ages in 1825, he loaned two cows to each settler and oxen for teams, while resolutely refraining from killing any for food for himself, his officers or employes, until 1838, when "the first beef was killed for use at Vancouver."

We see him, in this matter of domestic cattle, thus denying himself and almost mutinous subordinates two years after he had assisted (by more than one-third of the money outlay) in the laudable effort of the American settlers and missionaries to procure cattle of their own, so as to be independent of the Hudson Bay Company in that respect. Yet, we see him in wise care for the needs of his own employes and those of the increasing settlers, one year later (1839) refuse to supply the British squadron under Sir Edward Belcher with beef, for which refusal Captain Belcher complained of him on his return to England.

Thus we see Dr. John McLoughlin, with almost paternal care, encouraging, guiding and guarding the beginnings of settled industrial life in Oregon. Standing on the high plane of a Christian gentleman, who sees for himself a duty to mankind above the race, national, sectarian and business interests, which are closing in contending lines around him, he "Welcomes the coming, speeds the parting guest," with a true Highland hospitality to the best within his control. After sixteen years, with almost absolute power for good or ill over Oregon, during which time he had acted the good samaritan to unfortunate traders, kept open house for scientific explorers, made welcome travelers for information or pleasure, advised and assisted to locate missionaries like Jason Lee, and bound to himself in bonds of personal friendship, failing traders, like Nathaniel J. Wyeth, and devoted missionaries like Whitman and his noble wife, he stands ready to receive in the same spirit of generosity the first overland immigrants as home builders (in 1840) whose increasing numbers, in a few more years, take the dominion and the government from his hands.

Hon. P. H. Burnett (who was influenced by his counsel and a recipient of his aid and hospitality) from an intimate personal acquaintance, says: "Dr. John McLoughlin was one of the greatest and most noble philanthropists I ever knew." The Hon. M. P. Deady, in his scholarly address to the Oregon Pioneers in 1875, said of him: "Had he but turned his back upon the early missionary and settler and left them to shift for themselves, the occupation of the country by Americans would have been seriously retarded and attended with much greater hardship and suffering than it was. * * He was a great man, upon whom God had stamped a grandeur of character which few men possess, and a nobility which the patent of no earthly sovereign can confer." The Hon. J. W. Nesmith, who served his day and generation as a pioneer in the command in the field, speaking from his own knowledge as an immigrant of 1843, says: "Dr. John McLoughlin, then at the head of the Hudson's Bay Company, from his own private resources, rendered to the new settlers much valuable aid, by furnishing the destitute with food, clothing and seed, waiting for his pay until they had a surplus to dispose of. Dr. John McLoughlin was a public benefactor, and the time will come when the people of Oregon will do themselves credit by erecting a statue to his memory. Of foreign birth and lineage, he gave the strongest proof of his devotion to republican institutions by becoming an American citizen while all his personal interests were identified with the British government. Thus far, detraction and abuse have been his principal reward." These are the words of three men who labored as master builders upon the foundations of this commonwealth. The truth and history will fully vindicate them.

To the assistance given the immigrants of 1843, as described by Colonel Nesmith, I can add, as an eye witness, that those of 1844 received the loan of boats in which to descend the Columbia river from the Dalles (there being no road across the Cascades), the hungry were fed, the sick cared for and nursed, and not the least was the fact that many of the employes of the H. B. Co. followed the good doctor in their treatment of Americans. Especially was this the case in the settlement of retired Canadians who almost worshiped him. This settlement was a magazine of supplies, a hospitable, orderly community, its existence as early as 1834 enabled Dr. McLoughlin to send Jason Lee into this vicinity "to sleep in peace and safety in a garden of cucumbers and melons," on the farm of Joseph Gervais. In 1836, according to Lieutenant Slocum (the first agent of the United States government who came here to see the condition of American citizens) a surplus of 4000 bushels of wheat was to be had. The existence of this settlement fully justified Dr. McLoughlin in advising Lee to locate here, and from action on that advice has grown the fact that we now see, over against this capitol, dedicated to the welfare of humanity, with trust in God, the Willamette University and other buildings, dedicated to Christ and humanity.

In 1841, when Commodore Wilkes, the second observer in behalf of the United States, came, the population, according to Sir George Simpson, governor of the Hudson Bay Company, was 400—sixty Canadians, with Indian wives and half breed families, and sixty-five American families. There were then in the country 3000 head of cattle, 400 horses, besides an uncounted number of hogs. The wheat crop was 35,000 bushels, from Wilkes, with due proportion of oats, barley and potatoes. The price of wheat was 62½ cents per bushel, for which any goods could be drawn from the Hudson Bay Company's stores, except spirits, at 50 per cent. advance on London cost. In addition to this production of the settlement planted by Dr. McLoughlin, there was a 700-acre farm at Vancouver, managed in the best style of North British farming, and large quantities of pork and salmon were put up, so that when the [illegible] emigration of 1842 came, there was grain enough in the country for one year's [illegible] but, foreseeing, as they brought information of the larger immigration to come in 1843, the doctor foresaw [illegible] the necessity of securing a corresponding increase of seed to be sown, so that the [illegible] of the newcomers might find an increased provision for their support.

These were the considerations which [illegible] his liberal supplies [illegible] the immigrants of 1843 and 1844 of furnishing those immigrants who needed [illegible] not only what would relieve their immediate wants, but [illegible] opening farms, so that [illegible] in the country in 1845 and succeeding years. The children of Israel had their Joseph in Egypt; John McLoughlin was the Joseph of the early home builders of Oregon.

[illegible] of the settlers received at the hands of Dr. McLoughlin would be just [illegible] his two [illegible] years [illegible] of his dealings [illegible] making the beginnings of settlements comparatively safe.

[illegible] the fact that [illegible] have an [illegible] The goods [illegible] substantial, and as cheap as [illegible] and sold at prices [illegible] Indians. He never [illegible] punished one Indian for the [illegible] He never punished an Indian [illegible] of one, but he followed the [illegible] relentless persistence until he was brought to justice. In one notable instance he made the Indians execute justice on each other. This was when the American trading party under Jedediah Smith, eighteen in number, was set upon and fourteen of them murdered near the mouth of the Umpqua. Smith and two of his men, who were absent from camp when the massacre occurred, and one other reached Vancouver in forlorn condition. They were not only cared for, but Dr. McLoughlin took such measures as recovered $3200 worth of Smith's property, and restored the same to him without cost. And, by telling the Indians who purchased the stolen goods of the murderers to look to them for their pay, the murderers were more effectually punished by the tribal war which resulted than even the Hudson Bay Company's power could have done.

I will mention one instance of the arrest and execution of a single Indian, one of two who had for purposes of robbery murdered a servant of the H. B. Company, while asleep in his tent on Sunday afternoon, at Pillar Rock, on the lower Columbia. The Indians fled toward their own country up the north coast. One was killed in the first pursuit, the other was taken as a prisoner to Astoria, where he escaped. He was retaken, after causing the death of two women, disguised as men who were assisting him. There was no question of his guilt. Dr. McLoughlin, in order to make the lesson of his execution impressive to the Indians, invited the leading men amongst them, and all classes of the settlers and missionaries, to be present. He made the arrangements for the event in a way best calculated to strike terror to the Indian mind, and, when all was ready, with his white head bared, made the Indians a short and earnest address, showing them that the white men of all classes, Englishmen, Americans, and Frenchmen, were as one man to punish such crimes. There is no doubt his treatment of the participators in the murder of Smith's party made the settlement of Umpqua valley more safe than it would otherwise have been, and there is just as little doubt that the execution at Astoria in 1841 had that result on the lower Columbia.

During the latest period of his administration, while Dr. McLoughlin was pursuing this wise and humane policy toward the American immigrants, he was entertaining the emissaries of the British government as residents at Vancouver. For some time before the settlement of the boundary question England kept two such agents in Oregon, one of whom, in the later years, was the son of Sir Robert Peel, the then prime minister of Great Britain. There was also an officer in the interest of the company he served, living on the closest relations with him, and, in addition to these, his subordinates (part of whom were intensely loyal to England) kept up a constant muttering about the doctor's Oregon City claims and "his nursing of vipers" by the advances he made to the Americans. To all such findings he says, in his posthumous paper, "It may be said, and it has been said, that I was too liberal in making these advances. It is not so, but it was done judiciously and prudently." The pioneers of Oregon were not, and are not, ingrates. They deplore deeply the wounds their friend and benefactor received from self-constituted champions of diverse national interests, from sectarian bigotry, or from political ambition. That he keenly felt such, we learn from the paper from which I have already quoted, concluding: "To be brief, I founded the settlement, and prevented war between Great Britain and the United States, and for doing this I was treated by the British in such manner that, from self-respect, I resigned my situation in the Hudson Bay Company's service, by which I sacrificed $12,000 per annum, and the Oregon land bill shows the treatment I received from the Americans."

In this sad summary of such a life as Dr. McLoughlin's, there is a statement that merits our attention, which, if ever proven true (and no man that ever knew Dr. McLoughlin will doubt that he believed it true), namely, that he prevented war between Great Britain and the United States, will show that two of the greatest nations on this earth owe him a debt of gratitude, and that Oregon in particular is doubly bound to him as a public benefactor. (British state papers may some day prove all this.) It is now twenty six years since the legislative assembly of the state of Oregon, so far as restoration of property to Dr. McLoughlin's family could undo the wrong of Oregon's land bill, gave gladness to the heart of every Oregon pioneer worthy of the name. All of them yet living now know that (good man as they believed him) he was better than they knew. They see him now, after the strife and jealousies of race, national, business and sectarian interests are allayed, standing in the center of all these causes of contention—a position in which to please all parties was simply impossible, to "maintain which only a good man could bear with patience"—and they have adopted this means of conveying their appreciation of his great forbearance and patient endurance, combined with his generous conduct. Looking then at this line of action in the light of the merest glimpses of history known to be true by witnesses yet living, can any honest man wonder that the pioneers of Oregon, who have eaten the salt of this good man's hospitality—who have been eye witnesses to his brave care for humanity, and participators of his generous aid, are unwilling to go to their graves in silence, which would imply base ingratitude—a silence which would be eloquent with falsehood.

Governor and Representatives of Oregon: In recognition of the worthy manner in which Dr. John McLoughlin filled his trying and responsible position, in the heartfelt glow of a grateful remembrance of his humane and noble conduct to them, the Oregon pioneers leave this portrait with you. Hoping that their descendants will not forget the friend of their fathers, and trusting that this gift of the men and women who led the advance which has planted thirty thousand rifles in the valley of the Columbia, and three hundred thousand when needed in the national domain facing the Pacific ocean, will be deemed worthy of a place in your halls.

Mr. Minto's remarks received close attention, and when the speaker finished he was warmly applauded.

GOVERNOR PENNOYER'S RESPONSE.

In accepting the gift for the state Governor Pennoyer said:

Respected Sir, Ladies and Gentlemen: On behalf of the state of Oregon, I extend through you, sir, to the honorable association of Pioneers, the thanks of the people of this commonwealth for the present you have made to the state. This gift is alike creditable to the venerable men of your association in its bestowment and to the state of Oregon in its acceptance. It does honor to the pioneers of Oregon, because it shows their full appreciation of the high qualities of a true and a noble manhood, and the placing of this painting in the honorable position it now occupies in the senate hall of the state capitol evinces the appreciation on the part of the representatives and the people of this great state. Dr. McLoughlin was indeed a most extraordinary man. Entrusted with a most responsible position under the British flag at a time when there was a bitter contest for governmental supremacy in Oregon, it was [illegible] the honorable wish and prompting of his heart that the flag of his country might continue to wave over Oregon soil, and yet in instances repeated without number, he extended the hand of charity and unstinted aid to the poor immigrants of the contesting people, whose advent here threatened the supremacy of his government over the contested territory. While he was loyal to his country, he was, as became his lofty character, more loyal to his conscience, and while never forgetting his full allegiance as a Briton, he never forgot his higher duty as a man.

The love of country is a commendable love. No devotion is too strong for the land of our birth and for the government that has protected us in youth, shielded us in manhood, and which constitutes our security in declining years. In its defense, its loyal sons will tread with fearless step the ensanguined field and face with unflinching courage the bayonet's charge or the cannon's sweeping hail. But above and beyond this love of country is that greater love and that broader and more catholic spirit, which prompts the true heroes of every nation, to extend to the suffering of their own race, though met as foemen on the battle plain, the cordial hand of Christian charity.

The soldier when he gives a cup of water to a wounded foe, is a grander hero in the sight of Heaven than when he bravely struggles in the battle's van. To love your country is the service of every citizen, enjoined by duty and the law of the land, but to love your fellow man is a higher obligation, enjoined by conscience and the law of God.

And to do honor to the memory of a man whose charitable deeds were bestowed, to alien suppliants, [illegible] in the mere love of money, and who never turned his face from any poor man, is simply to reflect honor upon ourselves. It was [illegible] the spirit of divinity itself that prompted the angel to write in letters of loving light, Ben Adhem's name above all other names, because he, more than all his brethren, had truly loved his fellow men. We rear the stately shaft to the memory of those who fell in defense of their country and we perpetuate the recollection alike of heroes and statesmen by statues wrought of solid marble or enduring bronze, but those men who have done quiet deeds of kindness and charity, all along the path of their life's duty, need neither shaft nor statue to keep alive the recollection of their noble deeds. It will forever live in thankful hearts and be handed down from grateful sire to son.

And more than this, in that great beyond where the character of every man will be tested in the light of eternal truth, the humble and unostentatious giver of good gifts to the poor of this world, will outrank in dignity and honor the arrogant possessor of millions of earth's sordid dross, [illegible] of the highest [illegible] name and honors.

Then let this picture of the revered old man, whose numerous deeds of charity are inseparably interwoven in the early history of our state, ever enjoy the place of honor it now holds. And when our children and our children's children shall visit these consecrated halls, let them pause before the portrait of this venerable man and do homage to his memory, who, with his patriotic devotion to his country, united his devout service to his God, [illegible] the full completeness of his [illegible] character, with an unmeasured love for his fellow men.

MISSIONARY CONVENTION.

The following is the program for the missionary convention to be held at Taylor street church, in Portland, February 13th, 1889, beginning at [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

He is a well known citizen, and his nearest and dearest friends [illegible] How do we happen to know [illegible] he is low spirited, [illegible] has night sweats, he is [illegible] cough. These symptoms are the forerunners of consumption and death, and yet he neglects them. Is it any wonder that we call him a madman? If you are his friend tell him to get a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery without delay. It will cure him if he takes it in time. It will not miraculously create new lungs when the old ones are nearly gone, but it will restore diseased ones to a healthy condition. Tell him about it, and warn him that in his case delay means death.

Be at his grand opening Saturday. Freimann surprises even himself.

SEATTLE-TACOMA.

Something About the Cities and Towns of the Sound.

A Bit of History About Ship Harbor—The Charge of the Chief Justice—Some Personal Pointers.

SEATTLE, Feb. 6.—Ex-Governor E. P. Ferry is sanguine of the future of Ship Harbor as one of the great ports of Puget Sound, and he believes it is one of the finest harbors of this splendid inland sea. Mr. Ferry was governor of Washington territory when the emperor of Germany in 1872 settled the disputed boundary line question between Great Britain and the United States. Previous to this dispute the San Juan islands had been a precinct of Whatcom county, but for many years there had been a joint military occupation of the forces of Great Britain and the United States. When the boundary line was agreed upon it will be remembered that the American commissioners gave up the southern part of Vancouver island (the line run through the island) on condition that the boundary should go around the main channel, south of Vancouver, to the ocean, thus making a natural water boundary. But the check of the [illegible] came into play. He claimed that the canal de Haro, between Vancouver island and the San Juan group was not the main channel, but that the straits of Rosario, between the San Juan islands and Fidalgo island, (which is really part of the main land,) was the proper channel. This, of course, would scoop in the rich islands for John Bull. The old emperor [illegible] saw through the scheme and [illegible] that the channel nearest to Vancouver island was the main channel [illegible] and [illegible] war was averted and the San Juan group was placed under the civil control of the officers of Washington territory. For many years during the dispute people lived there, tilled the land and paid no taxes.

Opposite the San Juan group is Fidalgo island, called so by a narrow stream, the Swinomish slough, at high water only separating it from the main land. At the most western end of this so-called island is Ship harbor, "the finest harbor on the west coast of the sound, from Seattle to the boundary," said Governor Ferry. The governor gave me a bit of history relative to the merits of the harbor. When he went down there to establish civil government, after the emperor's decision, he was on a United States revenue cutter. A furious snowstorm came up late in the afternoon, which was something rare for that part of the sound, and the captain, somewhat alarmed, was heard to say that if he could make Ship harbor all would be safe. Next morning, when the guests aboard the cutter awoke, they were riding in the beautiful harbor. In after years ex-Governor Ferry, James McNaught, James M. Buckley and others bought many hundred acres of land on Fidalgo island, at and near Ship harbor, for about $10 an acre. It is now worth $300 an acre and upwards, and is increasing in value every day.

"I know that a railroad is building from Ship harbor up the Skagit river westward for at least thirty miles," said the governor, "and that Elijah Smith of the O. R. & N., Sidney Dillon and Mr. Adams of the Union Pacific are backing it. I also know that this line will, by a union of interests with the Seattle, Lake Shore & Eastern railroad, cross the Cascades, and thus become a transcontinental line, with a grand terminus at Seattle and at Ship harbor, and that a connection will be made with the Canadian Pacific road. This will be accomplished in about a year's time. Thus you see why land is becoming so valuable on Fidalgo island."

The steam schooner Signal, from San Francisco, was here a day or two ago unloading about 300 tons of merchandise. She then went to Tacoma and discharged about eighty tons there. Powder, dynamite and other dangerous things were part of her cargo. It was the first trip of the Signal to the Sound. I saw the men unloading the powder and dynamite at the Tacoma wharf, and two or three of them were complacently smoking short pipes while doing it. Captain Lewis, of the bark Carrollton, loading South Prairie coal at that port for San Francisco, said that some stringent regulations were needed on the Sound ports relative to loading and unloading vessels. "Is the supply of coal for San Francisco increasing from this part of the country?" I asked of the captain. "Oh, yes," he replied, "and coal is much cheaper in San Francisco than it was this time last year. Departure bay and Wellington coal is $4 a ton lower. The cause of it is the mild winter and the large stock on hand in San Francisco. The dealers had to come down in price. It has brought freights down also."

A rumor gained currency in Tacoma a day or two ago that General John W. Sprague was much worse and liable to pass away, but his nearest friends have late information that he is much improved in health and is staying at the residence of Captain Ainsworth in Oakland, California. General Sprague is troubled with an affection of the bladder. He is a strong, vigorous looking man with an elastic step, and it is hoped that his southern trip will greatly benefit him. While he is away his fine residence, opposite "The Tacoma," is passing away. Though but eight years old, it was one of the landmarks of the town. It has been moved off the site, and the pretty garden and orchard surrounding it has been torn up to make room for the erection of [illegible] in Tacoma, more stores and offices. Sam Wilkeson, the owner, says he will put up a splendid hotel on the site one of these days.

"What time does the train leave for Portland?" asked a traveler the other night at the Pacific Avenue hotel in Tacoma. "It will be along here from Seattle after a while," said a bystander. "Why, I thought the train was made up here at Tacoma," he replied with some astonishment. "No, indeed," he said vigorously, "Tacoma thinks she is the terminus, but Seattle is the end of the route, and if the train coming from there to catch Portland is late, Tacoma people who want to get on and ride must wait." There is a good deal of "kicking" at the manner the Northern Pacific trains are run, both in Seattle and Tacoma, and it makes business good for the boats. Seattle has trains running out to her suburbs every hour on the Seattle, Lake Shore & Eastern, but the Northern Pacific arranges it so that Puyallup people, eight miles from Tacoma, can either walk to their county seat or get there at an outlandish hour by taking the train. There appears to be more "git up and git" about the Seattle folks in a great many things, and, in the language of Col. Visscher, "when he speaks the true Kentucky dialect they generally 'git thar.'"

Every good citizen here is rejoicing at the strong language used by Chief Justice Burke to the grand jury relative to conspirators and gamblers. Seattle has seen the day when both were thicker in her midst than quills on a porcupine. Three murderers were once lynched in her streets which is proof positive that her people do not do things by halves. Afterward, in the anti-Chinese excitement, twelve citizens were doomed to death by a crowd of dynamiters who would have carried out their secret determination but for the sudden death of one of their number, which brought the superstitious part of their cowardly natures to the front, and subsequently the plot leaked out. I saw one of these conspirators on the streets yesterday who has forsaken his evil ways and is trying to do right. Chief Justice Burke was once marked as a victim by these men along with two other citizens. He is fully aware of the desperate character of some of the men of former days when Seattle was run by a foreign element, so much so, that when the military fired into a mob and killed one and wounded a dozen, not one of them was a citizen or had declared his intention of becoming one. The conspirators, or their successors, have transferred their operations from secret conclaves in the cities of the Sound, which have grown too strong for them, to the outlying mining camps, and are now telling the owners how to operate their mines and how much money the owners must pay them to be allowed to have them operated. The scenes at Gilman, at Newcastle and other points, prove this. Chief Justice Burke is just as severe on the gamblers as on the conspirators, and it remains to be seen whether they will be cleaned out of Seattle as they have been in Portland and Tacoma. Two variety dives with "box workers" attachments, said to be the vilest of the vile, are in successful operation here and the sheriff of the county is the receiver of one of them [illegible] is raiding gambling saloons. There is but one [illegible] It must be hell right there to live under the shadow of the [illegible] Portland, San Francisco and other places on the coast [illegible] the depraved women who "work the boxes" and are to outsiders "actresses," come and go like the waves of the sea, while the dudes with cigarettes, the loggers with [illegible] pipes and the [illegible] of the community with low brows and unkempt appearances [illegible] them. [illegible] Chief Justice Burke [illegible] in this matter.

I met Hon. A. A. Denny in front of the [illegible] today. He is going to build [illegible] one of the finest hotels on the Pacific coast. It has been [illegible] years since he landed [illegible] [illegible] C. M. B.

NEWS ITEMS FROM ASHLAND.

Grubbing Season—[illegible]—Good Weather—The Rail[illegible], Etc.

The grubbing season has commenced, and men, busy as beavers, can be seen divesting the hill sides of chaparral, etc., preparatory to planting orchards. Many thousands of trees will be set out in Ashland and vicinity during the next few months.

It will not be long now before Ashland can shine out in all her splendor by the aid of electric lights. Ashland is fast donning city attire, and her importance as the center of the great fruit interests of Rogue river valley is being felt every day.

"The Oregon," the fine new three-story brick hotel, just finished by A. W. Scott, the contractor, has been leased to Dr. A. C. Helm and Dr. C. E. Beebe, two well known citizens, for a period of years. Dr. Helm goes to Chicago soon to buy furniture, etc. Ashland is now assured of a first-class hotel, and is to be congratulated accordingly.

The frame work of T. K. Bolton's $2800 residence is being raised, and the contractors, Ayers, Barkdull & Eltinge, intend to push it to completion as soon as possible.

I. W. Burriss has been made happy by the advent of a bouncing baby girl at his house.

Mr. Lederman, of Albany, who will start a boot and shoe store in the I. O. O. F. block, has arrived and expects to be doing business in a few days. J. A. D.

VANCOUVER'S BID.

Answers of the Vancouver Board of Trade to the United States Navy Yard Commission.

To the United States Navy Yard Commission—Gentlemen: The board of trade of the city of Vancouver, in the county of Clarke and territory of Washington, respectfully submit to you the following answers to your published list of questions bearing upon the location of a proposed navy yard upon the North Pacific coast.

First—The finest quality of ship building timber, second to none produced upon this coast in durability and strength, can be had in practically unlimited quantities in the immediate vicinity of Vancouver via the Vancouver, Klickitat and Yakima railroad and via the Columbia river and its tributaries. [illegible] that purpose. [illegible] in this vicinity.

Second—[illegible] in the waters of the Columbia [illegible]

Third—[illegible] reaching to within [illegible] miles of Vancouver. There is also a [illegible] miles away. There is a smelter [illegible] and wrought iron [illegible] at Oswego, [illegible] only nine miles [illegible] Products of Oswego [illegible] Productions of Eastern [illegible] can be landed here as cheaply as at any other point on the North Pacific coast.

Fourth—Coal mines of [illegible] of excellent quality, of which we have specimens, lie along the line of the Vancouver, Klickitat & Yakima railroad, within fifty miles of this city. The railroad above [illegible] is being pushed rapidly towards those mines, and when connection shall be made therewith, the quantity produced will be [illegible] by the demand and the carrying ability of the railroad. This coal can then be sold in Vancouver for not more than $3 per ton.

Fifth—Lime kilns operating in Portland, Oregon, only six miles distant from Vancouver, can deliver at this city an excellent quality of burned lime for from $1 to $1 50 per barrel.

Sixth—Bricks of the very best quality and in any desired number can be furnished by the brick kilns of Vancouver at from $6 to $7 per 1000.

Seventh—Sand stone, blue granite, and basaltic rock of excellent quality for building and street paving purposes abound on the banks of the Columbia river within a short distance of this city. Extensive quarries and rock works are now being operated only eight miles from this place, and in this county of Clarke, and on the banks of the Columbia river, whence the supply of stone for the jetties now being constructed by the United States government at the mouth of the Columbia river is obtained.

Eighth—Hydraulic cement of the very best quality is manufactured at Oregon City, only a few miles from Vancouver. The rock from which this cement is made is found in extensive quantities in Douglas county, Oregon. The Portland Cement Company now produce hundred barrels per day. This quantity can be increased on demand. The article produced has, by actual test, been found equal to the best importations from the cement factories of England.

Ninth—Nearly all kinds of machine shops are operated within six miles of this city, giving employment to thousands of white American artificers in iron, brass, wood, stone, etc.

Tenth—Population about 125,000 to 150,000 persons within a radius of twenty miles of Vancouver.

Eleventh—About twenty five thousand men.

Twelfth—Yes. The United States signal service has had a station in Portland (only six miles from Vancouver, for the last sixteen years. A full tabular statement from the records of that office is hereto appended.

Thirteenth—There is a complete system of water works supplying the city of Vancouver. The United States government owns its old system for the supply of the garrison. The city of Vancouver is situated on the north bank of the Columbia, one of the great fresh water rivers of the world.

Fourteenth—Rents average from $7 to $12 per month for houses such as this question refers to. Necessary provisions for a working man costs about $2 per week. Board with lodging costs from $4 to $5 per week.

Fifteenth—Vancouver is known to be one of the healthiest cities on the North Pacific coast, as will be seen by reference to the tabulated statement covering a period of the [illegible] years, rendered by the U. S. military hospital at Vancouver barracks, which is hereto appended.

Sixteenth—There are places on the military reservation and elsewhere in and around Vancouver of excellent clay for the construction of dry docks. The general character of our soil is gravelly, making a good foundation for heavy buildings. [illegible] of stone and brick are erected upon this gravel [illegible] of from three to four feet [illegible] covering the surface soil.

Seventeenth—The manufacturing interests and operations of Vancouver are confined principally to the products of the forests, and brick and rock works. But all of the manufacturing plants of Portland and Albina are within about six miles of this city.

Eighteenth—All of the great transcontinental trunk railroads terminate at or connect with the city of Portland. Vancouver has easy and regular connections with Portland by boat and rail road lines.

Nineteenth—Projected industries, in addition to those already here, are: Several new sawmills; the completion of the Vancouver, Klickitat & Yakima railroad, to connect with the Northern Pacific at North Yakima; the Southern Pacific railroad from Seattle is expected to cross the Columbia river at Vancouver. The effect of these enterprises will be to build up this city, attract population and lay the foundation of [illegible] manufacturing [illegible] for the development of the great [illegible] resources of the forest, field and mines surrounding and tributary to Vancouver.

Twentieth—All articles used for the construction of [illegible] and iron and steel ship building can be furnished at Vancouver as cheaply as at any other point upon the Pacific coast.

Replies to the Second Series of Necessary Conditions to the Location of the Proposed Navy Yard.

First—Vessels of the largest size can anchor safely in the Columbia river before the city of Vancouver. The whole river, for 100 miles from its mouth, forms a [illegible] and sound harbor for ships of the heaviest draft. By removal of a small sand bar from the river a few miles from Vancouver (an enterprise which will not cost much) [illegible] the fleets of the world could sail past our city.

Second—The Columbia river has numerous points upon its banks where forts could be erected sufficient to defend the proposed navy yard, if located at Vancouver, against the fleets of the world combined.

Third—The land parts of the military [illegible] of the Columbia are located here at Vancouver. A full regiment is stationed at Vancouver barracks. Natural position for defense, etc., is set forth in preceding statement, (all good).

Fourth—Ample water frontage, deep and permanent and moderate current, adjoins the bank here.

Fifth—Principal sources of supplies are all reached by rail and steamer lines from Vancouver.

Sixth—Suitable grounds in every respect are here and already in possession of the United States government. Other grounds suitable for excavation, and heavy structures, can be selected almost anywhere in this vicinity.

Seventh—The cities of East and West Portland and Albina, with outlying villages, contain about [illegible] persons to supply labor and the supply of all needed material can be had here, or in Portland and Albina and vicinity.

Eighth—[illegible] beautiful, healthful, [illegible] suitable [illegible]

Ninth—Good drinking water is unlimited in quantity. One of the great rivers of the world [illegible] flows past our city day and night. [illegible] This water is never warm as it passes Vancouver.

Other Advantages of This Place for a Navy Yard.

1. There are no [illegible]
2. All [illegible] removed.
3. The natural local advantages of this city were perceived by the Hudson's Bay company, and it [illegible] headquarters for this part of the [illegible] long before it became settled that this [illegible] north-west belonged to the United States.
4. The old Oregon Steam Navigation Company selected Vancouver as headquarters because of its natural advantages, and the company was driven away only by [illegible]

[illegible] Very respectfully, your obedient servants and fellow citizens,

JOHN R. THOMPSON, Chairman,
MARDON D. WILSON,
MATT BROWN,
P. C. KAUFFMAN,
J. T. GRAY,
Committee on Navy Yard Commission of Vancouver Board of Trade.

LIGHT COURT PROCEEDINGS.

A Very Quiet, Dull Day Among the Several Tribunals.

The Mortgage Tax Law—Defendant Discharged—Appointed Executor—Grand Jury—Report Presented Before the Police Judge.

The mortgage tax law, which is an eyesore to the creditor portion of the community, carries with it a host of complications and difficulties. The latest feature of the situation is furnished in the case of S. Simon against Gustaf and Mary Kutzschan. Two notes for $[illegible] each were given to Simon by the Kutzschans in 1887, he claims as reward for his services in securing a $10,000 loan for them. They understood, and proved to the satisfaction of the jury, that the notes were given to cover the taxes on the two mortgages in the case, which the law requires the mortgagee to pay. Suit having been brought by Simon on the notes, the jury found that the extra charge for the taxes was nothing short of usury, and that the notes could not be collected. Money lenders will bear this decision in mind in doing business hereafter, but it would be idle to suppose that their prolific brains will be at any loss to prevent a diminution in the discounts of their dealings, through which the farmer breaks his back in vain endeavor to pay up, and eventually loses his place.

POLICE COURT.

Yesterday afternoon Judge [illegible] disposed of the following cases in the police court: Peter [illegible] and David W[illegible], simple drunks, fined [illegible]; James Carter, disorderly by fighting, [illegible]; John Mal[illegible] and Fred W[illegible], disorderly, forfeited $10 bail each; H. Williams, vagrant, [illegible] days.

[illegible] charged with fraudulently [illegible] had his case [illegible] this afternoon.

[illegible] assault and battery [illegible] Ah Wo, and Ah Wau, charged with [illegible] will be [illegible] in the police court [illegible]

ARRESTED FOR EMBEZZLEMENT.

On a warrant sworn out in Justice Tuttle's court by Robert England, J. W. Williams was yesterday arrested on a charge of embezzlement. England, who is an agent for the American [illegible] Association, states that while Williams was acting in the capacity of solicitor for the company he collected $[illegible] of the company's money which he failed to account for. The case will come up for a hearing in Justice Tuttle's court this afternoon.

AN UNPROFITABLE ACTION.

A successful demurrer is rare enough to be noteworthy among the innumerable number of such documents filed. One has been sustained in the case of Sarah E. Lee against the Oregon Packing Company. The company's demurrer having been sustained, and the plaintiff not appearing to amend the complaint, the costs were yesterday assessed against her and the defendant discharged without delay.

PRESENTED HIS REPORT.

Mr. G. G. Gammons, receiver of the Holladay property, having completed its transfer to Mr. H. Y. Thompson, as representative of the purchasers, yesterday presented his report to the United States circuit court. The report was approved, the receiver discharged, and his bonds exonerated, and this ends the connection of the name of Holladay with the property.

MRS. MORGAN ACQUITTED.

The case of Mrs. Morgan, charged with making threats against the life of William Jones, a colored man living next door to her, was decided in Justice Tuttle's court yesterday morning by discharging the defendant. It appeared from the testimony that no such language as is alleged in the complaint was used.

A PENNSYLVANIA ESTATE.

G. E. Willington was yesterday appointed executor in this county for the property here belonging to the estate of David Taggart, who died in Northumberland county, Pennsylvania, in June last, leaving a $50,000 estate duly devised by will.

THE GRAND JURY.

This body held no session yesterday. The place of Juror Mock has not been filled yet, and could not be done yesterday as two or three of the regular panel are absent on leave. P. W. Gillette, the foreman, is also ill. Important cases are waiting for their consideration.

PERMISSION TO WED

Was yesterday accorded to Frank J. W[illegible] and Mary E. Bechfield.

WHEAT—For the month of January has been dull and inactive. Absolutel business has been done. What wheat the country was not for sale at export both sides held off watching the forei which fluctuated in a weak desultor day to day. It was confidently and is that the quantities afloat would decr which would have shown shortage and consequently would have made vance. No such thing has occurred, except for recent reports of damage Republic crops, all wheat raising c turning out more grain than early es them. The local market opened the $1 40 for valley, $1 32½ for Eastern through the month the market has be steadily, with no business being done, we quote valley $1 30, Eastern Oreg prices that are at best but merely nomi been pretty generally understood that Oregon crop was about cleaned up, fo but it was supposed that there was fr per cent of the valley crop still hel housemen. The feeling has been gai however, that there is not nearly so wheat left as was at first supposed. for the month have been 280,936 ctls, ctls shipped to the U. WHEAT—For the month of January the market has been dull and inactive. Absolutely no local business has been done What wheat was held in the country was not for sale at export prices and both sides held off watching the foreign markets which fluctuated in a weak desultory way from day to day It was confidently and is yet expected that the quantities afloat would decrease, a fact which would have shown shortage somewhere and consequently would have made prices advance No such thing has occurred however, and except for recent reports of damage to Argentine Republic crops, all wheat raising countries are turning out more grain than early estimates gave them The local market opened the month with $1 40 for valley $1 32½ for Eastern Oregon All through the month the market has been dropping steadily with no business being done and to day we quote valley $1 30, Eastern Oregon $1 2[illegible] prices that are at best but merely nominal It has been pretty generally understood that the Eastern Oregon crop was about cleaned up for some time but it was supposed that there was from 20 to 30 per cent of the valley crop still held by warehousemen The feeling has been gaining ground however, that there is not nearly so much valley wheat left as was at first supposed The receipts for the month have been 280 038 ctls with 21 617 ctls shipped to the U K and Continent, all of it in fact, going to Cork for orders For the past six days the receipts have been 58 440 ctls all of which came from Eastern Oregon

LONDON GRAIN LETTER

The London correspondent of the Northwestern Miller, writing under date of January 14 says

The weather has changed again and has become colder with snow both in this country and in France. Farmers especially in France were anxious for a spell of cold frosty weather for the young wheat plant was growing too rapidly and ill weeds were also growing apace The wheat markets this week have not been devoid of firmness partly owing to the falling off in the supplies of home grown wheat in England and France and partly because Odessa with her immense wheat stocks (12 000 000 bushels) is closed by ice and is likely to remain so until February Nevertheless buyers remain scarce in view of existing large supplies and prices are difficult to maintain The weakness of the American markets last week moreover had some effect. There is however not wanting a certain degree of confidence in the future which is based on the idea that the supplies for the next six months in Europe might be low the requirements For instance Beerbohm in his last Friday's review gives a statement which shows that while the exporting countries may be supposed to have 14 000 000 bushels less to spare than last year in the six months ended June 30 the importing countries United Kingdom, France, Belgium Germany Holland and Italy will require at least 36,000 000 bushels more than they did last year, thus making a total deficiency of 50 000 000 bushels This, you will see, sufficiently agrees with what I put forward in my last week's letter and is certainly a correct view of the situation The total imports of wheat and flour into the United Kingdom with the farmers supplies during the past two years have been as follows

	1888, qrs	1887 qrs
Imports wheat	19 [illegible] 400	19 0[illegible] 100
Imports flour	[illegible] 60	5 5[illegible] 00
English wheat	[illegible]	[illegible] 00 000
Total	26 [illegible]	26 [illegible] 600

The exports in each year were about 300 000 qrs so that the net quantity for consumption was [illegible] 000 qrs in 1888 and 2[illegible] 0 000 qrs in 1887 In 1887 the stocks increased about 500,000 qrs and in 1888 they are supposed to have increased about 1,000 000 qrs Thus the consumption in the United Kingdom is in round numbers, 2 750,000 qrs The flour market in London has remained in a rather dull state and only known American brands of reputable quality meet any attention Patent flour keeps up its prices but straights [illegible] The Indian government takes a [illegible] interest in the Indian wheat trade as you know Messrs MacDougall's report on the quality of Indian wheat, some four years ago was brought about by the government and gave a much more sanguine view of Indian wheat than practice would warrant They are now taking steps to have the wheat shipped in a less foul condition than hitherto and have issued a circular to British millers asking for suggestions to this end It is in fact no uncommon thing for Indian and specially Calcutta or Bengal wheats to come to hand with 10 per cent of dirt and rubbish intermixed If this were remedied the government imagines that British millers will [illegible] more of it [illegible] evidently that few if any British millers with any respect for the quality of their flour would have more than [illegible] per cent of Indian wheat in their mixture except it be of the choicest quality of which but a limited quantity is grown Indian wheat exports have [illegible] increased to the extent imagined and expected by the government The total for 1888 was only 30,000 000 bushels against 36,500 000 bushels in 1887 which was a very short crop year and 44 000 000 bushels in 1886

I bought a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound and before I had taken it a week I felt very much better I can cheerfully recommend it to all who need a building up and strengthening medicine." Mrs. B A Dow Burlington, Vt.

CITY DADS WON'T PAY IT.

A Very Lively Meeting of the Common Council Last Night.

"Smallpox Comes High, but We Must Have It"—The Bill Considered Outrageous—Petitions, Ordinances, Resolutions.

The auditor's office, just before the meeting of the common council last evening, presented rather a lively and animated scene. All the councilmen were present except Hoyt, and the cause of the excitement was the appended report.

THE BILL "FOOTS UP" BIG.

The following report from Chief of Police Parish and City Physician Meyer was read:

PORTLAND, Or., Feb. 6.

To the Honorable Mayor and Common Council of the City of Portland—Gentlemen: In compliance with the resolution adopted by your honorable body January 2, 1889, calling for a report of the number of cases of infectious and contagious diseases known in this city during the past year, and also a statement showing the amounts of each particular class of expenditures made in the care and treatment of such diseases and the prevention thereof, we have obtained from Dr. F. A. Meyer a report covering the period during which he acted as city physician, and also a report from S. B. Parish, chief of police, covering that portion of the year previous to Dr. Meyer's appointment, which are herewith transmitted. The following is a STATEMENT OF EXPENDITURES.

For the care and treatment of infectious and contagious diseases, and the prevention of such diseases, from January 1, 1888, to January 15, 1889:

Addition to hospital building and permanent improvements	$ 1,018 30
Furniture, fixtures, bedding, etc., including articles furnished in lieu of those destroyed	602 30
Express wagon, and wagon and harness repairs	200 55
Feed for horses	55 35
Clothing	1,130 41
Moving patients, delivering supplies, etc.	291 00
Meals for patients and attendants	51 25
Wood used at hospital	17 00
Groceries, provisions, etc	1,136 20
Tobacco and cigars	49 25
Drugs and medicines	636 65
Whisky, wines, etc	252 40
Salaries of nurses	2,877 50
Salaries of physicians	1,784 50
Cost of burials	53 25
Total	$10,155 30

Claim of Horatio Cooke for $800 not approved and still outstanding.

Total number of cases treated at smallpox hospital, 31; cases treated at place of residence, 24; total number of cases in 1888, 55.

Number of persons, not patients, provided with food, medicines and clothing (persons in quarantine and nurses), 27; total number provided for, 82.

After running through the report one of the councilmen remarked: "Smallpox comes high, it appears, but I suppose we have to have it."

Messrs. Castendeick and Farrell, of the committee on health and police, had signed the report, but Mr. Fleidner, the other member, absolutely refused to sign it.

He thought the amount expended was outrageous, and viewed with displeasure the items for wines, liquors, cigars, tobacco, tropical fruit, etc. He had asked a prominent physician about the quantity of liquor which should be furnished to smallpox patients, and was told they should not have over a spoonful a day, if any. "Now how many spoonfuls would the amount charged in that bill buy?" asked he. "And then there is Captain Cook's bill beside. Great Cæsar!"

The report when read in its order was received in silence, and referred to the judiciary committee.

The views of the council on the matter may be judged from the fact that under the proper head an ordinance:

To replace ordinance 1353, empowering the Board of Health to make certain expenditures so that all expenditures for the prevention of infectious or contagious diseases, and for the care of persons suffering from such diseases, shall be audited and paid in the same manner as other expenditures of public moneys, was introduced, read twice and referred to the judiciary committee.

Captain Horatio Cook's bill of $840 raised a lively discussion, in which all took an active part.

The items for burying each of the five members of the Caspari family were as follows:

Coffin	$25
Hearse	30
Grave	10
Ordering grave dug	5
Services of Mr. Cook and assistant	80
Total	$150

For hearse to H. Wrays, twice, he charged $80 and for a coffin and outside box $30 more, making his bill in all $840.

Mayor De Lashmutt stated that he considered the bill extortionate and the Board of Health had refused to pay it. Mr. Cook insisted on having the full amount. The bill had been submitted to the council, as the board of health did not wish to take the responsibility of a law suit. After some discussion, in order to bring the matter to an issue Forbes moved that the bill be paid. A vote was taken and the council unanimously refused to pay it, and left it in the hands of the board of health and if Mr. Cook wants his $840 he will have to sue the city for it.

The bills sent in by the police commissioners for the salaries of the force and expenses of the department were ordered paid except a bill for gas for the city jail for nine months amounting to $407.75, which was referred to the committee on health and police and chief of police. A bill for gas for the council building for five months had, after some discussion, been ordered paid, but when a bill for nine months for the jail came in and averaged over $40 per month, and for December $[illegible], it was too much, especially as there is a standing resolution that these bills shall be paid [illegible]. The gas company will have to be more prompt in the future or [illegible]—electric lighting will be likely to strike them.

CASE SENT TO THE GRAND JURY.

Charles Stuart Trippler Waives Examination—A Brief Review of His Early Life.

The police court was yesterday afternoon again crowded in anticipation of seeing Charles Stuart Trippler arraigned on a charge of forgery. When the prisoners charged with minor offenses were brought into court Trippler did not appear among them, and it then became evident that either the defendant desired to waive examination, or that a further continuance was about to be granted.

The curiosity of the spectators was not gratified. As the case was called Charles Petrain, counsel for the prisoner, stated that inasmuch as the grand jury were already investigating the case Trippler would waive examination. Nothing was left for Judge Tanner but to fix the amount of bail, and the case passed out of the jurisdiction of the police court. Trippler was bound over in the sum of $500. Later in the day he was taken from the city jail and put in a cell in the county jail. His friends are still putting forth every effort to secure his release and have him sent to the asylum.

An army officer now at Vancouver, having known Trippler while stationed at the presidio, San Francisco, furnishes the following facts concerning the unfortunate man's early life:

Trippler came to California in 1869 or 1870 with the Twelfth United States infantry, under command of Colonel Harry Mizner, and the regiment was ordered to Humboldt county to keep the Indians in Northern California in check. Trippler was then one of the youngest, handsomest and best connected captains in the service. In years before Alexander G. Abell, a prominent citizen of San Francisco, had been and was even then a warm friend of the Trippler family. During the young captain's visits to the city he was always a welcome guest in the Abell household, eventually resulting in a matrimonial engagement between the officer and eldest daughter of his host.

For some reasons Mr. Abell objected to his daughter marrying Trippler; but in this instance, as in most others, to use a threadbare phrase, love laughed at locksmiths, and despite the father's remonstrance the young lady married the then gallant captain in 1870 or 1871, Mr. Abell being most conspicuous by his absence at the ceremony. Early after the marriage the captain and his bride returned to the former's post of duty. It was little more than a year subsequent to the unblessed wedding that some ugly reports went the rounds in army circles with reference to Trippler, and soon thereafter he resigned. What the nature of the reports were the narrator did not reveal. But Trippler and his wife returned to San Francisco, affecting a reconciliation with Mr. Abell. He at various times subsequently held positions in the United States mint and custom house, and dropped from the memory of regular army men till he came here and disgraced himself.

DECAMPED OR FOULLY DEALT WITH.

Anxious Creditors Taking Charge of the Store of Anton Vuscovitch—No Sign Yet of the Man.

The little fruit stand, cigar store and soda fountain at Ninth and Washington streets mourns the loss of its proprietor, and a duly accredited representative of the courts takes in the money for oranges and tobacco, but pays none out.

Anton's "location" has been the envy of many a less fortunate competitor, and more than one person of limited means has projected an opposition establishment in the neighborhood. But in spite of the 50 to 300 per cent profit upon his ready sales, and the near approach of thirsty weather, Anton is no more. His friends maintain that he has been foully dealt with, but an array of creditors, to whom a large share of Anton's earnings have not gone, begin to suspect that the foul play is on the other side. Four attachments were yesterday put upon the store and stock, including one issued from Judge Shattuck's court on complaint of Mr. Levy, representing his own and assigned claims for $402.50. A man was put in charge by the sheriff, with instructions to take in all the money he could, and pay none out.

The Vuscovitch family is said to be en route from Europe to Portland.

PIONEER FISHERMAN TALKS.

Capt. A. A. Henderson Interviewed Regarding the Fishing Interests.

He Relates Some of His Experience—Result of Observations—Halibut, Cod and Other Varieties—Season—Market—Etc.

Captain A. A. Henderson, a pioneer fisherman of this coast, and one who has had years of experience on the Atlantic seaboard, was interviewed yesterday by an OREGONIAN reporter in reference to the opportunities for carrying on the business here in the Northwest. Mr. Henderson being interrogated about the finny tribe on the Pacific coast, said:

"The fishing here is as good as can be found anywhere. I do not know about the cod being very plentiful, but I have investigated the matter considerable, and think the halibut is quite abundant."

"When did you look into this matter?"

"About nine years ago I came to California with the intention of engaging in some enterprise of this sort, and, at that time, spent eight months in explorations. I visited all the important grounds along the coast, and also discovered many valuable locations. In fact, I believe all the fishing stations were known to me with the exception of one, which was found by the Albatross, a government survey boat. She located this just south of Yaquina bay, and it turned out to be an exceptionally good one. The Cape Flattery fishing grounds were then established by the Indians. I tried a number of places north of the cape with rather favorable results, and I think an immense business can be done from them to-day, if they are only managed properly.

"The report that the Albatross made, agreed very much with the ideas I had formed as a result of careful investigations. This was especially true in regard to the halibut. These [illegible] go north in the month of October. The grounds are generally flooded with sharks and dog fish, whose depredations are very disastrous and would, if some avenue of escape was not given, possibly exhaust the number of fish. Right here I would like to say that for some time there has been a doubt in my mind whether the halibut are driven north solely on this account, or that they are usually scarce at this time of year."

"At what time did you commence to engage in this business?"

"I was twelve years old when I made the first venture on the Atlantic coast, and for eighteen years it was my constant vocation. My principal points of operations were Newfoundland, Georges and the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The St. Lawrence mackerel are caught more than any other kind of fish. As to the other places, fishing was no better than here at the present time, and the grounds are now much inferior to those on the Pacific coast. I understand that the business only needs a few energetic spirits to start a revival in the traffic. No better banks can be found in the world than at Behring's sea, and around the Chilcat. If the chances here were fully realized by Eastern capitalists, ample means would be forthcoming for conducting the business. It is not generally known, but two firms at San Francisco have absolute control of the fishing interests here. They are Linn & Hough and McCollan. The men constituting these firms came here only a few years ago in quite moderate circumstances, while to-day they are very wealthy. This is, of course, the outcome of judiciously carrying on a legitimate business, but something else is required besides that. To be successful in an eminent degree, what one is engaged in must afford good opportunities for making money. This is undoubtedly the case with the fishing business, speaking from the history of those who have engaged in this enterprise."

"From whom do the Willamette valley markets procure their supplies?"

"That is just it. Those two firms of San Francisco probably replenish the stock of most of them. If stations could be established nearer here the additional expense of transportation from the southern coast would be obviated, thereby enabling fishmongers to continue in a profitable business, with the price to consumers much lower. Dealers are beginning to come from the East. Last year three ships came from there with the purpose of entering into the fish traffic. They were the Mollie Adams and Edwin F. Webster, owned by Captain Sol Jacobs, and the Oscar and Hattie. They all came from Massachusetts, and intended to make the halibut a specialty, which is becoming a very popular fish. Two ships are now on the way to Puget sound from Gloucester, Mass., for fishing purposes. I have known these things for a number of years, and came here with the express intention of dealing in fish, but not having the opportunity have been employed in building docks and structures along the river."

"At what part of the season is fishing the best?"

"The months of June, July, August and September are considered the best for halibut, but there are more months in the year than these for profitable fishing. The banks here have such a variety that a very small period indeed would be spent in idleness."

"You were at the banks of Newfoundland during our trouble with the dominion government, were you not?"

"Yes. You know our government paid $5,500, [illegible] for the use of the grounds, and everything went along smoothly while the cod supplied the demand. These fish are found in plentiful numbers outside of the three mile limit, and therefore no encroachment was necessary in order to procure them. The mackerel remain closer to the coast, and when the American vessels were used for that kind of fishing, there was a decided objection which has not been overcome yet and will not until some sort of compromise is made. That is, until our ships are not compelled to go ten or more miles out of the way to reach a custom house when trying to put into port to escape a storm. Our ships are as liable to be seized for getting bait of the Dominion government as for actually fishing for cod. This state of affairs will do much toward driving fishermen to this coast, and will cause the business to be conducted here on an extensive plan in a few years."

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

Progress of the Work at Grace M. E. and First Presbyterian—The New Jewish Synagogue.

The foundation walls are nearly completed to the desired level at Grace M. E. Church on Tenth street, and the corner stone can be laid in about a week. The alterations in the original plans for the wooden superstructure are thought to be finally settled upon, and will involve considerably less of an outlay than was at first proposed. The changes will affect the carpenter work, plastering and painting contracts. Those who are interested in architecture say that the carved stone work about the front entrance is to be something very fine.

The First Presbyterian still presents a busy scene. The leadwork and stained glass windows are in place, showing fine effects, and the roof is almost half slated. The lecture room will be finished upstairs to accommodate services in from four to six weeks. This society proposes to get over its lack of unlimited funds by leaving the final finishing of the remaining portion of the edifice until later on. It is possible to fix it temporarily, however, should such a course be thought desirable.

The young people of Beth Israel congregation propose to take a hand in the furnishing of their new temple at Tenth and Main streets, by giving two entertainments, consisting of a children's carnival, fair and concert. Preparations are said to be already making on an elaborate scale, and the public will doubtless encourage the young folks in their efforts to embellish the interior of the beautiful edifice. March 4 and 5, Monday and Tuesday evenings, are the dates chosen.

THE COURT HOUSE PLANS.

Accommodations To Be Made for Two Hundred Prisoners—Steam Heating for the Building.

It is proposed to expend $80,000 in adding to and improving the county court house and jail. The present quarters will be changed about to accommodate the transfer to the addition, and arrangements for heating by steam or hot water will be introduced, improving upon the present methods of heating.

The new wing, built upon the south end of the present building, will be something after the general style of the north wing. It will extend out flush with Main street, but will have no street on [illegible] to the jail. A wall, some four or five feet high, will run along the street, surmounted by an iron railing.

The basement will be an addition to the jail. It will contain sixteen cells of the latest improved steel pattern, including at least one dark cell, and one padded cell for insane patients. Secret tubes will be put in from the jail office to the cells, and also between the jail and the sheriff's office upstairs. A small [illegible] will be provided to run the prisoners' fare about the building, instead of the present combination of tray and trusty. Accommodations are then made for 200 prisoners.

[illegible] new offices will be fitted up, the clerk's [illegible] being put in front, and the county [illegible] vault being built between the present quarters of Judge Catlin and those of the county clerk. The vault will be two stories high, being built of stone from the ground up.

ASSESSMENT LAWS.

OREGOWN, Tillamook Co., Feb. 5.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

As an amendment to Mr. William Barlow's able paper on the above subject, I would humbly suggest that every tax payer be required to fill out his assessment blank at a certain hour and on a specified day all over the state, and which should be delivered to some designated precinct officer on that day, or be liable to a penalty for refusal or neglect.

The incubus under which our state is laboring at the present time, is that the greater portion of the indebtedness of the state pays taxes (or evades paying them) in Portland or one of two other cities, say Salem and Astoria. In the county of Tillamook there are three salmon packing houses, but their indebtedness to Astoria and Portland is so great that Tillamook county gets little or no taxes from them. All the principal flouring mills in the state, if I am correctly informed, are indebted to some place not in their own county, the result being the farmer, who insists on his being allowed exemption for a $40 grocery bill, has his taxes doubled because a neighboring corporation takes the same advantage, but to the tune of $150,000.

All property should pay taxes in the county in which it is situated, and the best way to secure that result is to tax all property at its cash value wherever found, exempting nothing but schools, churches, charitable institutions, etc.

If this cannot become law, then would it not be possible to assess all creditors for notes and accounts the same as mortgages are, requiring the taxes to be paid on them where the security exists. The taxes would be less than one-quarter what they are now, and moneyed men would not leave us, as many of them have done, because their taxes were so high.

Last summer, as school clerk, I assessed a school district, putting all stock at full cash value, and likewise, having for a standard for the latter two places which had just changed hands. Many held up their hands in holy horror when they heard it, but I was not deterred, and the result was complete satisfaction; the loudest objectors became the warmest advocates of the assessment.

Let our representatives at Salem pass any law that will give each county the full assessment of all the property in that county, and, no matter how it is done, they will merit more thanks and gratitude than any of their predecessors.

Would it not be advisable to change the time of assessment? Cannot it be so arranged that the thousands of acres of salmon peeled on the Columbia and elsewhere would be taxed? The most of them now escape entirely, and yet the state has a fish commission and spends a great deal of money to foster this great industry.

JOHN N. ROCK.

GATHERED ON THE EAST SIDE.

Hotel Runners Arrested—Entertainments—Doings—Personal and General Items.

Officer Atterbury arrested two hotel runners yesterday at the L street depot for catching hold of the passengers who came in on the train. They were brought before the city recorder and one was fined, but the other got off. It will have a wholesome effect on the other runners and restrain them from pulling and hauling passengers around until they are so bewildered that they don't know where they are nor where they want to go. Very little if any attention was paid to the ordinance that was recently passed by the council in relation to hotel runners, but [illegible] will be hereafter.

Y. M. C. A. RECEPTION.

A very pleasant reception and entertainment were given in the Y. M. C. A. rooms last night. There was quite a large attendance, and an interesting programme of both musical and literary exercises rendered. At the close a few moments were spent in social intercourse. The rooms are now opened in the morning at 9 o'clock and closed at 4 in the afternoon, and then opened again between 7 and 9 in the evening. The public are cordially invited to visit the rooms.

W. C. T. U.

There will be a business meeting of the East Portland W. C. T. U. to-day (Thursday) at 3 o'clock P. M., at their hall, corner Tenth and J streets, to arrange for the Major Hilton meetings. All members urged to attend.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

McKean Bros. will build two cottages in McMillen's addition, each costing about $[illegible]. They will be modern and finely finished.

The Mystic Club will give a social dance this evening in Hall & Stott's hall.

The sidewalk has been raised in front of Penny & Woolworth's barber shop and all the [illegible] has been disposed of. It is an improvement much needed.

There are now about [illegible] miles of wire up for the electric lights.

A party of about fifteen young people who are members of Adams street church went to Albina Tuesday night on the steamer Cyclone, and attended the revival services being held in the new Methodist church on Russell street. They report the meetings very successful and a great interest being aroused.

THE NEATEST FORGER OF ALL.

A Bold and Skillful Operator Secures $180 and Escapes Detection.

An exceedingly audacious and successful forger has succeeded in working the unsuspecting cashiers of three prominent firms to the tune of $180 [illegible].

[illegible] by the police, and it is thought by means of a renewal of his operations yesterday. The forger [illegible] by another overture, but as the public had not been apprised of his presence in the city, the game again succeeded, and he is probably by this time out of harm's way.

Tuesday afternoon a young man, dressed like a clerk, rushed hatless and breathless into the store of M. Seller & Co., saying: "Would you be kind enough to cash this check for Mr. Noon? It is after banking hours, and we want to pay a man off."

He was promptly accommodated. The supposed clerk took $60, and the cashier took the check, which was for a like amount, drawn in a beautiful flowing hand, and signed "W. C. Noon & Co."

At Neustadter Bros. he went through a similar procedure, slightly varied. This time he was in the interest of Herbert Bradley, who had deposited all their ready cash; "Would Mr. Neustadter please accommodate him by cashing a check for $60?" "Certainly." He did not have the check with him but went back to the cashier to get it, ostensibly; returning he was duly paid the money as before.

About 9 o'clock yesterday morning the young man played the same clever game on Prager Bros., with a handsomely written check signed "S. Loewenstein." When the check was shown to Mr. Loewenstein he said: "No, that isn't mine; I would give $1000 if I could write as well as that."

The forger is a young man, thought to be no more than 21 years of age, with light complexion, hair light and inclined to curl, sandy mustache. He was very quick and nervous in his movements, a quality possibly feigned in his clever impersonation.

It is thought to be the same skillful operator who secured considerable money in this way recently in Sacramento.

THE COUNTY JAIL.

Tripler Joins the Quality Prisoners—Barnet's Efforts Vain—Chee Gong Despondent.

The bright young colored boy, Johnson, who was caught in East Portland because he was too cute to work, goes out of the county jail to-day. He says he is going out to City View to work in the stables there. He has done considerable work in the jail and tells some thrilling stories about his turf experiences. Some of them are worth repeating. He gave a graphic description, to which his fellow prisoners listened with breathless attention, about a famous handicap in which he rode the winning horse. He afterwards spoiled the story by confessing that he had only rubbed down one of the distanced animals. "I once saw a man," he said at another time, "jump from a fourth-story window to the street, where he was instantly killed. I didn't see him jump, but I saw him after he was dead."

Life again seems worth living to the vagrants in the jail, since their ball and chain labor on the street has been declared off. There are still some prisoners there, however, who chafe at their restraint. Barnet, in tow of a deputy, showed himself on the streets yesterday and made futile efforts to raise his fine. If he hangs on to the $[illegible] already subscribed, the other $100 will in due course of time be credited to him by virtue of his confinement. He stated that he will go back to Chicago. "The land lives and reigns east of the Rockies," said he. There is a prospect of his being reduced to the prison diet to-day, as restaurant fare costs money.

Captain Charles Stuart Tripler joined the prisoners of quality yesterday, having waived examination in the police court on the charge of forgery. He talks freely of army reminiscences, and by his nervous and preoccupied air has given color to the doubts of his sanity which have been raised. The district attorney has not been idle in his case. The leading witnesses have been examined by the grand jury, and an indictment may be expected to-day. Determined efforts are said to be making in Masonic and Grand Army circles to have his conviction avoided, if, through no other way, by a commitment for insanity.

To-day marks the expiration of the five days allowed the attorneys of Chee Gong, the convicted murderer, to file a bill of exceptions. It is very doubtful, however, from what can be learned, as to whether any further efforts will be made to save the convicted man. Chee Gong is an unhappy man and promises, by his pale face, dejected air and sleeplessness, to go into a decline.

Morris Johnson was about town yesterday, accompanied by a deputy, and did some business. He and his alleged accessory, Agnes Woodard, are in hopes to be released soon.

Compare Hood's Sarsaparilla with other blood purifiers and you will see that it is by far the best.

The season's event will be the grand opening of Freimann's cafe on Saturday next.

THE C. SOUTHARD HULBERT.

Brief Description of This Staunch and Handsome Vessel.

Various Other Shipping Notes—Government Barges—R. R. Thompson—Steamer Danube and Collier Willamette—River Craft.

The C. Southard Hulbert arrived at her dock Monday noon. This is probably one of the neatest barks now afloat. She is modeled something after the style of the Coloma, and has evidently been built very staunch, by the graceful and buoyant manner with which she has emerged from many a storm. She is of 1080 tons burden, and her masts and hull are entirely of wood, while her rigging is wire. Aft are found the officers' apartments, which are exceedingly comfortable in appearance. Opening into the forward cabin or dining-room are four rooms. On the port side is a [illegible] room, which is devoid of a gloomy aspect, so often noticed on vessels, and a store room in which the miscellaneous articles belonging to the steward are generally kept. On the starboard side is a spare state room and pantry, which latter room seems to be utilized to such an extent that an incomprehensible number of articles occupy every available space, and the utensils seem to be in their proper places, with a complete absence of anything tending to confusion. A capacious stateroom and a small bathroom open off into the after cabin on the port side, while on the opposite side are two more staterooms used by officers. Coming out of the forward cabin, to the right, is found the second mate's room, and to the left the first mate's. These two apartments would surely escape the attention of a not too careful observer, as the doors are quite small and appear rather to be panels. But when once a person enters he steps down a short distance, and again is disclosed an apartment cozy enough for the most dyspeptic. Unlike her companion, the C. S. Bement, she has only two decks, being much smaller.

Forward, the general storeroom or crew's staterooms sits snugly upon the upper deck. Here are found all the essential implements for a thoroughly equipped vessel. There is not the slightest degree of laxity manifested by these, which no doubt signifies a rigid discipline at sea. The floor is entirely of bricks. There are nine of the crew. The cabins and upper woodwork is painted white with blue and red trimmings, while the hull is of black.

The Hulbert spoke only two ships on the voyage, one of which was a Danish vessel seen just north of the river La Plata in South America. This is a somewhat remarkable occurrence considering the enormous amount of traffic on the high seas. The peculiar characteristic of the trip was the variable winds. She would have sufficient wind for a few days, and then a lull would becalm her for some time. This more than anything else caused her unusually long passage. Only once was she in a gale. When off Cape Horn a terrific storm burst upon her that lasted for nearly fourteen days, causing her to fly before the wind at a tremendous rate of speed. She has the same kind of cargo as the C. S. Bement.

The deck has been placed on one of the government barges at Smith's mill, and the hull of the other one is nearing completion. The framework of the new boat being constructed by Johnson & Olsen, at the same place, is about finished.

The E. N. Cooke came down the river yesterday with a large general cargo. She had 190 tons of flour from the Corvallis mills, which makes the total shipments of a like magnitude within a month.

The G. P. Wright, which is owned by Captain C. Love, was inspected yesterday. The machinery and a great part of the woodwork was from the [illegible], but the hull is entirely new.

The two government barges, which are completed, were yesterday afternoon towed from the ship yard at Smith mill to the grounds just south of Steffen's yard.

At 6:15 P. M. yesterday the Oregon was still detained at Astoria by the health officer. She will probably leave for up the river to-day.

The hull of the R. R. Thompson has been painted red, and completed nearly up to the decks. She will soon be ready for service.

The steamers Kellogg and Toledo came in yesterday with another large consignment of potatoes and a general cargo.

The annual inspection of the Oregon is conducted by Captain Taylor takes place to-day.

The steamer Lucy Mason arrived at [illegible] P. M. with an unusually large cargo.

The Okanogan left Astoria for Portland with the Augusta yesterday, at 3:30 P. M.

The steam collier Willamette left up at 1:30 P. M. yesterday.

The Hatchet Story.

Mason L. Weems, after whom the steamer which figured in a civil rights suit before a court in Baltimore recently was named, was the author of the edifying but somewhat apocryphal story of "Little George Washington and the Cherry Tree," made familiar by many an old school book. A venerable Philadelphia druggist said that "Parson" Weems admitted to him that the hatchet story was a romance worked in for its effect upon growing youth.

Choking Catarrh.

Have you awakened from a disturbed sleep with all the horrible sensations of an assassin clutching your throat and pressing the life-breath from your tightened chest? Have you noticed the languor and debility that succeed the effort to clear your throat and head of this catarrhal matter? What a depressing influence it exerts upon the mind, clouding the memory and filling the head with pains and strange noises! How difficult it is to rid the nasal passages, throat and lungs of this poisonous mucus all can testify who are afflicted with catarrh. How difficult to protect the system against its further progress towards the lungs, liver and kidneys, all physicians will admit. It is a terrible disease, and cries out for relief and cure.

The remarkable curative powers, when all other remedies utterly fail, of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, are attested by thousands who gratefully recommend it to fellow sufferers. No statement is made regarding it that cannot be substantiated by the most respectable and reliable references.

Each packet contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise and directions, and is sold by all druggists for $1.00.
